JUST WAIT TILL INDIAN SUMMER

Dr. Hyatt Says It Will Be Warmer Then.

LAW OF AVERAGES RELIED ON

FAIR WEATHER IS PROMISED FOR WEDNESDAY.

Tuesday Was a Very Wet Day, But Other Places Not Far Off Enjoyed Even More Liberal Downpour of Rain.

Today's rainfall is not a sign that "the melancholy days have come." It is not many teardrops shed by Mother Nature at the death of her fairest daughter, Summer.

Summer is not dead. Only sleeping. She will live again before the snow comes. So says Dr. Hyatt. And the weather man loves "the beautiful summer time" best of all the seasons of the year.

Don't say a word about trying to make that which we love live. Dr. Hyatt is a man of science. He cannot let sentiment trifle with facts, so he has a reason for his statement.

MORE RAIN, BY JINGO!
HBM.

That reason is the "Law of Averages." This law is a great and mighty thing that says there must be an equalization of temperatures.

Equalization of temperatures for the year 1902 demands that we have many warm days. "They must come," says Dr. Hyatt, "if not just now, at least at Indian summer time. We can't have a year without a summer very well, and there has been no summer yet.

Summer Will Come in Autumn Months.

"The summer girls must have a show, so must the summer gardens and so must I. Summer is my season, you know."

Dr. Hyatt thinks also that autumn will be like summer. That the trees will stay green and the flowers bloom until some morning winter will come unannounced and proceed to take charge of things. That is our future weather, as he sees it today. Today that makes one think of November, and grate fires, and graves. Today, when we are walking through the wet, under gray skies and between much rain.

Today, that came in with a northwest wind blowing at the rate of 32 miles an hour, and bringing this rain that makes double-headers and postponed lawn parties possible, and which had already reached a depth of .94 inches at 10 o'clock this morning.

According to Dr. Hyatt's forecast there will be more rain Tuesday afternoon and night, and the river will rise. But we are not the "only ones" when it comes to rain.

There is "falling water" in Mississippi, Ohio and Missouri valleys, in the north Atlantic states, Rocky Mountain slope and the central West. The heaviest rains, however, are in our own Missouri and our sister state Illinois.

Thunderstorms accompany the rain in most of the places mentioned.

But the future is not without hope, and Dr. Hyatt has reasons for his optimism.

The indications for Wednesday are fair.

DESMOND SHY CLARK'S BONDS

Circuit Attorney Took Case Out of Three C's Court at Chief's Request.

Harry Adams, alias "Frenchy" Dupree, confessed pickpocket, who was arrested by Detectives Lee Killian a week ago, after he had picked the pocket of Michael Kraniz, on a Lee avenue car, at Broadway and Locust street, was charged, in an information issued by Circuit Attorney Folk Tuesday, with robbery from a person in the night time and with robbery on a railroad car.

This action is equi[illegible] to an indictment by the grandjur[illegible] it takes it out of the hands of the Court of Criminal Correction, in which court Dupree appeared for his preliminary hearing Tuesday.

Kraniz lives at 1530 Mallinckrodt street, and he and his daughter were returning from a boat excursion when the robbery occurred. He and his daughter and a hundred citizens gave chase. Dupree ran into Detective Killian and was arrested red-handed.

Chief Desmond feared that a bond that might not hold would be accepted in the lower court, and he asked Mr. Folk to cause the information to issue and thus get the case in the criminal court where a speedy trial would follow.

"I WAS DRUNK; NO EXCUSE"

Frank Admission Made by Rev. Sam Small for His Collapse on Temperance Lecturing Tour.

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Aug. 26.—The collapse of Rev. Sam Small, the well known temperance lecturer, who was to speak for the no-license local-option party last night, by Rev. Small's own admission today, was due to intoxication. Mr. Small says:

"I was drunk. I have no excuse to offer."

Sam Small is known all over the United States as an evangelist and lecturer. He was formerly a newspaper writer in Atlanta, Ga. He has appeared in St. Louis on the lecture platform and as an evangelist on several occasions

DOME FELL IN GAIETY THEATER

Historic St. Louis Playhouse Is a Wreck.

IT WAS ONCE THE LONDON

EARLY HOME OF VARIETY PERFORMANCES.

Since Mysterious Tragedy of Five Years Ago Building Has Been Closed to All Save an Aged Shoelace Vender.

The roof of the auditorium of the London Theater, alias the Gaiety Theater, 24-26 South Fourth street, fell at 6:15 Tuesday morning.

A meaningless sentence to young St. Louis, the floodgate to reminiscence to St. Louisans of two decades.

If the accident had happened 25 years ago St. Louis would have been agog with the tidings. The story would have filled columns in the old days, for once the London and Gaiety Theaters were known to every St. Louisan. The beaus of the days which followed "The Crisis" patronized the London Theater and youths, who are now the mainstay of St. Louis' business interests, were wont to visit Mrs. Esher's Gaiety Theater and watch a ballet, which today would be pronounced insipid by any summer garden habitue.

Pressing time backward farther, say 30 years, we find that the old building was the site of Gregory's Winter Garden, a restaurant of great respectability, patronized by gentlemen and women of fashion.

The building was a wreck Tuesday, and only the gilded image of Melpomene was left on the walls to keep silent vigil over the wreck of gallery, parquet and family circle. Thalia, Terpsichore and Eros, those who ruled in the old days, had long since fled.

Entire Roof Fell in a Heap.

Melpomene watched a wreck, which can sacrcely be remedied. The entire roof of the auditorium was lying, a mass of wastage, in the center of the building. The walls stood, and the front of the theater, where Jean Paul, the aged Frenchman, sells shoe laces, was intact.

Jean Paul, alone of the thousands of persons who have stood within its walls, cherishes an affection for the ruin. The old place was his home and his shop. He dwells in a tiny room in the front of the building and exhibits his stock of small merchandise in what was once the foyer of the theater. Jean Paul is sad. If the owners of the old building decide to demolish the part which the accident left standing he will lose his home and his shop. Sorry fortune for a man of 75 years, who knows no English.

Jean Paul was not hurt when the roof fell, but was greatly alarmed.

Fortunes Were Made and Lost.

He says that when it was first built it was called Gregory's Winter Garden. There was a fountain in the center of the auditorium then, and tables scattered around. If one wished, he could leave the garden and reach by a flight of stairs to the north of the building the palatial gambling parlors maintained by a powerful "company." There one might hazard fortune at keno, roulette, faro, poker and any game where chance ruled.

After Gregory gave up the place the building was occupied by the London Theater. Variety shows were presented. We call them vaudeville now. Charles (Shorty) Fry controlled the shows and he acted himself in skits given before the calcium gave the word "Good night."

The Gaiety Theater came after the London had passed. One day a rich cattleman was found dead at the foot of a staircase in the Gaiety Theater. He had fallen over the balusters, it was said.

The place was closed, and since that time the bats and sewer rats, the wood mice and old Jean Paul have kept lonely watch in the place of mirth and tragedy.

Perchance the Storm King did a kindly deed when he guided his wand of wind against the old building which remained only a monument to departed glory.

CITY NOW HAS PUBLIC BATH

Anyone Who Will Stand Under Courthouse Dome Can Get a Free Shower.

Nobody who believes in the city maintaining free public bathhouses can complain now, for one was established Tuesday morning directly in the heart of the business district, or to be more accurate, immediately in the center of the courthouse rotunda.

A delightful shower was in constant operation there all the morning and anybody who wished to soak himself was at liberty to do so. Many did it who had no intention of bathing nor had a desire to be immersed. They just happened to be deep in thought and walked without seeing until they fell in.

The new institution is of the Roman style of bath establishments. The floor is of stone, and massive pillars support the surrounding balconies. Exquisite paintings, so old and neglected that they are peeling off the walls, pictures painted by renowned artists, look down upon the ground floor as though they would like a bath, too.

A beautiful dome, with many balconies, and surmounted by a little cupola, overhangs the bathroom, and from this little cupola the water comes. It is punctured all over and when the heavens open their flood gates, down it trickles until the sun appears and sucks up the moisture.

There is another smaller and more private in courtroom No. 1. The roof or skylight permits the entrance of the water supply here, but few persons know of its existence. It is understood by those who are required to labor in the courthouse that some day when the city gets a lot of money ahead, their bathhouse will be closed up, the holes in the cupola plugged, and possibly a piece of roof placed on courtroom No. 1.

GRAVE WOULD NOT HIDE HIS SECRET

Missouri Bigamist Tried to Bury His Alias.

CRIME QUICKLY DISCOVERED.

MAYOR JAMES PENDLETON OF GENTRY PLAYS UNIQUE GAME.

With a Wife and Children at Home He Took Another Bride in Kansas and in Trying to Make Her a "Widow" Was Trailed and Apprehended.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ALBANY, Mo., Aug. 26.—The mysterious burial of a coffin, filled with ice, near Orlando, O. K., Aug. 15, by "John Cox," under the pretense that the casket contained the body of his friend, Coda S. Morris of Emporia, Kan., is no longer a mystery.

The man who buried the ice-laden coffin was James Pendleton, mayor of Gentry in this county, and his act was an endeavor to place in the grave one of his own aliases, Coda S. Morris, under which name he had married in Kansas, while having a wife and family at Gentry. In his endeavor to get rid of "Morris," Pendleton assumed the name of "Cox." He has been arrested and is now in jail at Emporia, Kan., where wife No. 2 lives, and must answer to the chargeof bigamy.

Pendleton Makes Confession.

Pendleton made a full confession to the sheriff of Lyon County, Kansas. Sheriff O'Connor came to Albany and returned to Emporia with Pendleton Sunday. Mrs. Morris accompanied Sheriff O'Connor. She identified Pendleton as the man to whom she was married June 17 in Emporia by the Rev. Mr. Parker of the Christian Church. Pendleton wilted when he met the woman, but would not talk. The warrant was sworn out for Pendleton's arrest on the charge of bigamy by wife No. 2.

Pendleton's identity and whereabouts were discovered in this way:

Aug. 15, when, as "John Cox," he bought the coffin and the 200 pounds of ice at Perry, O. T., for the burial of Morris, he also purchased a crate of peaches. The coffin and ice were sent to Orlando; the peaches to Mrs. James Pendleton, Gentry, Mo. On this clue he was easily traced. It was discovered that Pendleton returned to his home in Gentry Aug. 16 from Oklahoma, after an absence of eight months. Sheriff O'Connor of Lyon County telegraphed the marshal of Gentry to arrest Pendleton. He refused to do it because Pendleton was the mayor. O'Connor then telegraphed Sheriff Barkley at Albany, the county seat, to arrest Pendleton and he did so Saturday night.

In his confession Pendleton said:

"I have been under a doctor's treatment for a year because of brain trouble and at times am a little 'off.' I have had too much morphine."

He said he was 36 years old, and was married first 12 years ago, but it was at least 18 years ago, as he has a daughter that old. Mrs. Grace Obley-Morris is of good family and excellent reputation.

The Burial of "Coda S. Morris."

Pendleton was first seen at Orlando, O. T., Aug. 11. On that date a stranger giving the name of John Cox hired a livery team at Orlando, and, accompanied by a driver, drove west of Orlando about six miles, where he turned back abruptly, saying that he had gone far enough. He returned to Orlando. Next day he hired another team and went alone to the farm of John Bocox, eight miles west of Orlando, where he bought a grave lot in a country cemetery in charge of Bocox. He told Bocox that a traveling man named Morris had died of congestion of the stomach while passing through the country, south of Bocox's farm. Cox told Westfall, another farmer, that Morris had been killed in a runaway caused by his team taking fright at some tents. Another farmer named McKinley was informed that the cause of Morris' death was heart disease. Cox employed Westfall, who lives on the Bocox farm, to dig the grave. He said that friends of the dead man were coming on the train from the North to attend the funeral, but that if they did not arrive in time he would inform Westfall, so that the latter would not have to stay up all night. Cox went to Perry, where he purchased a cheap coffin and shipped it to himself to Orlando. The coffin was opened on the depot platform and about 200 pounds of ice put into it. Cox loaded the coffin into an express wagon and drove to the Bocox farm.

He went alone. "Cox" explained that he wanted the ice to pack around the body, as friends might want to exhume it for purposes of identification, and the ice would preserve it for some days.

Arriving at the farm he told the people then that the body was in the coffin. Westfall and his sons, Thomas and E. B. Westfall, helped Cox carry the coffin to the grave and bury it. Cox directed that the grave be made flat on top and asked that it be kept in good condition, as a woman would be there in about two weeks. The suspicion of the Westfalls, who are easy-going farmers, was not aroused.

Sunday, Aug. 17, the coffin was dug up by order of A. H. Obley, father of Pendleton's wife No. 2, "Mrs. Morris" of Emporia. It was found to contain only a small piece of ice. The tracing of "Cox" then began, and ended in the arrest of Pendleton at Gentry.

PEN PICTURES OF PENDLETON.

Not the Styish Man That He Was When He Came A'Courting.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EMPORIA, Kan., Aug. 26.—The story of the Pendleton family is that James Pendleton's family was very wealthy when he came to Gentry many years ago. The Pendletons were heavy dealers in cattle and at one blow lost all their property a few years ago.

James Pendleton, the mayor of Gentry, is considered "queer," but was much respected. He came to Madison, Kan., about eight months ago and has made several visits to his former home since he came to Kansas. In Madison he always went under the assumed name of Coda S. Morris. He was in the business of farming and shipping chickens. In Madison the story is that when asked what his business was he cut inquirers short by stating that he got $40 a month for minding his own business.

When interviewed by the Post-Dispatch correspondent this morning Pendleton was not feeling his best, but was quite communicative. He is a typical Missourian, about six feet tall, muscular and weighs about 180 pounds. He is of light complexion, has light hair, blue eyes and slightly aqueline nose. When arrested he had not the appearance he did two months ago when in Emporia with matrimonial intentions. At that time he dressed well and was smooth-shaven; he now wears a month's growth of beard and is dressed like a workingman, with a wide-brim straw hat.

"You remember your marriage to Miss Obley last June, don't you?" he was asked.

"O, yes," he said and rolled over in his bunk.

"Will you put up any defense at all in your trial?"

"No."

"How big a place is Gentry, Mr. Pendleton?"

"About 3000 to 5000."

"You are mayor of the town, are you not?"

"No," at first he replied.

"You say not?"

"This morning's papers said you are the mayor?"

"Did they; I haven't seen a morning paper."

"Is that correct that you are the mayor?"

"Well, yes, I guess so."

"How old are you, Mr. Pendleton?"

"Thirty-six."

The probate judge's marriage affidavit book shows that Coda or Morris is 36 years old. Pendleton is at least 50.

"You remember the Orlanda burial deal, don't you?"

"Yes."

"And you were John Cox and Coda S. Morris?"

"Yes, all of 'em."

"What was your business in Madison?"

"Collecting and in land business, and then I did business for some other parties."

"How long were you there—about eight months?"

"Yes."

"Where did you first meet Miss Obley. At the Clinton Hotel?"

"Yes, about a year ago."

"Did you ever have any trouble at home or in Gentry?"

"No, I never had any trouble."

Rather emphatically.

"You think there was something the matter with your brain during all this trouble?"

"Yes, I do."

During the conversation Penleton acted rather drowsily and held his head continually with his hands. It might be supposed from his remarks that he will plead insanity, but he says he will make no defense, and acknowledged he is "up against it."

He said he had a little too much morphine and his head was not "just right." The penalty for bigamy ranges from three months in the county jail and $100 fine to five years in the penitentiary.

As the marriage of Morris to Miss Obley was illegal, Mrs. Morris will resume her maiden name, Grace A. Obley.

Pendleton first became acquainted with Miss Obley at her parent's home on last April 3. He told her he was wealthy and she said he seemed a "perfect gentleman." They were married by Rev. Parker on June 17.

Miss Obley said this afternoon: "I have nothing much to say except that of course I feel very much broken up over the whole affair. I now must go to work again for myself. I married a man who deceived me because he was in every respect a gentleman and was always very kind to me and said he was well to do."

Miss Obley tabooed the idea of insanity on Pendleton's part.

She intends to prosecute Pendleton who today waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over to the district court with a thousand-dollar bond.

MANY SCRATCHES AT KINLOCH

Famous Brigadier Out of the Handicap.

KINLOCH RACE TRACK, Aug. 26.—This was a day that fully tested the faithful. It would be impossible to imagine a more dreary afternoon, chilly and wet, but not sufficient to dampen the ardor of the talent who were present in as large numbers as if it had been an ideal August day.

The track was a miniature Mississippi, but was not holding or heavy. It was suggestive rather of acquatic than of the sport of kings.

Brigadier, Satin Coat, Found, Felix Bard, Bengal and Brief weer scratched, leaving a nice field of nine to run.

WOMAN THOUGHT A PICKPOCKET

Police Seeking Evidence Against Bessie Ferguson.

TRIAL OF HER CASE POSTPONED

SHE WAS ARRESTED AT WEST END HEIGHTS SUNDAY.

Male Company, Who Gave His Name as Frank Bell, Was Also Taken in Custody—Bystander's Purse Stolen.

The case against Bessie Ferguson, also known as Bessie Beard, was continued until Friday by the city in the City Hall Police Court Tuesday morning.

The woman was arrested at West End Heights Sunday night by Detectives Murphy and John McGrath and Special Policemen Kirk and Rice.

They say she is an old offender. The specific reason for her arrest Sunday night was a suspicion that she might have been connected with the disappearance of a purse.

The purse was extracted from the pocket of a Mrs. Feuerbacher, who lives in South St. Louis. She was standing near the theater entrance when she felt its loss and exclaimed that her pocket had been picked.

The detectives heard her outcry and immediately arrested the Ferguson woman and a male companion who were near Mrs. Feuerbacher. He gave his name and address as Frank Bell of 4110 Maryland avenue. She said she lived at 1220 Sarah street.

One of the detectives who made the arrest asked City Attorney Taylor to continue the case. It is said that the police department asked the delay for the purpose of trying to secure evidence against the woman.

Both the woman and the man denied any connection with the theft.

HOW A WOMAN PICKS POCKETS

(By Chief of Detectives Desmond.)

The woman pickpocket invariably works in conjunction with a man. And no woman ever was reckoned as a successful pickpocket unless she was able to dress modestly, look well and talk well. Women pickpockets are scarce, because it takes great nerve and a quick wit for them to be successful.

The woman pickpocket and her male companion are always quietly dressed. Their object is to attract as little attention as possible. They are never in a hurry, and may always be found where the crowd is the thickest. When they attend a summer garden they do not witness the performance, but always manage to be around the entrance when the crowd is entering and departing. The man is in advance of the woman, but he speaks to her occasionally in a frank, open way, to let persons see that she has an escort.

When the victim is selected, if she be a woman, the woman pickpocket does the "heavy work," and the man does the "stalling." The man steps in front of the victim and jostles her, at the same time he picks a quarrel with some man in close proximity, accusing him of shoving. This attracts the attention of the victim. Then the woman pickpocket works, and she works fast. She gets the pocketbook, or watch, or jewel, and passes it to her confederate, who makes it a point to leave as soon as possible. Often there is a third person with the couple, and the "swag" (stolen property) is passed to him, and as he has kept out of the affair apparently, he is allowed to depart unsuspected.

The woman then appears unconcerned. So does the man who started the jostling. They have ready answers for all questions that may be propounded by citizens, and if the police arrive they are respectful, never offering resistance, and rely on their ability to get out of trouble by not committing themselves.

RESCUER BRAVED DEADLY FUMES

Conrad Fritz Saved Life of Martin Heinemann.

AMMONIA FLOODED CELLAR

BREWERY WORKMAN BREATHED STIFLING GAS 20 MINUTES.

Air Shaft Furnished Entrance for Comrade, Who Risked Life in Finding and Bringing to Surface Unconscious Man.

Martin Heinemann breathed ammonia gas for 20 minutes Monday afternoon, and was saved from fatal suffocation by the heroism of Conrad Fritz, a fellow-workman.

The bursting of an ammonia feed pipe in a cellar under the Star Brewery at Belleville flooded the room with the fumes of ammonia, extinguished the lights and blinded and dazed the men.

David Miller, chief engineer, and Conrad Fritz, his assistant, made their way by groping in the dark to the nearest outlet, 30 feet below the ground. They then found that Heinemann had not reached the entrance.

They called for Heinemann, but received no answer. Other workers in the brewery came, and one after another volunteered to go after the missing man. But a few steps into the ammonia-laden atmosphere sent them back to the entrance gasping and choking.

Then Fritz offered to go after his comrade through an airshaft which leads from the cellar to a point 15 feet above the ground.

A water-soaked sponge was tied in front of Frit's nose and he was lowered by a rope through the pipe.

Reaching the bottom of the shaft he groped about for Heinemann, who was lying unconscious a few feet away. Those at the top of the shaft had little hope that Heinemann was alive, and doubted whether Fritz would find him if he were alive, and they stood ready to draw Fritz back to the air at the first twitch on the rope.

The signal was long in coming, and when the quick tugging at the rope commenced the men at the top felt that they were drawing a double burden. A physi[illegible] been called, and he succeeded in [illegible] Heinemann.

Heinemann was seriously aff[illegible] long stay in the poisoned atm[illegible] his condition is still critical.

DID MRS. BISCHOFF TO END HER SUFFERING COMMIT SUICIDE?

Woman Answering Her Description Jumped From the Bridge Monday Night.

MRS. BISCHOFF IS MISSING.

HER RELATIVES HAVE SEARCHED IN VAIN AND THINK HER DEAD.

She Was the Victim of a Painful Disease and Had Made Threats That She Would End Her Life.

Mrs. Francisca Bischoff is believed to have killed herself Monday night by leaping from the railing of the Eads bridge into the Mississippi river. She has been absent from her home at 2631 St. Vincent avenue since 7 o'clock that evening, and a woman of her description committed suicide in that manner a couple of hours after her disappearance.

She had been suffering the most excruciating pain for several days, was unable to masticate food and it was extremely difficult for her to swallow liquid refreshment. She had intimated her intention to end her physical agony by drowning herself in a well, and Monday, when in an agony of torture, she exclaimed:

"Oh, it cannot be always like this!"

Monday evening, about dusk, her son, F. L. Bischoff, who lives the next door east, went into her house to make a light for her, but she would not permit it. About 7 o'clock he went again, knowing that she would require the lighted lamp, but he could not find her. He searched over the house, called her name, and looked around the yards, but she was gone.

The wig, which it was her custom to wear, lay on a dresser; the little black satchel she generally carried was missing, and the shawls she used to protect her shoulders and head from the night air were gone.

THOUGHT OF HER THREATS.

His mind instantly reverted to her threats of taking her own life, and, knowing her feeble state, he could not become reconciled to the suggestion advanced by friends that she might have gone to visit her son, Rudolph Bischoff, in East St. Louis, as she had frightened them by doing about a month ago.

He hastened to the home of his sister, Mrs. J. H. Hartman, at 2351 Albion place, and her son, F. J. Hartman, began a search that lasted until 4 o'clock Tuesday morning.

He learned that she had gone as far as the bridge, but there lost all trace of her. She had not been to visit her son across the river, nor had she been seen by any of her children who live in various parts of the city. Then the police informed the family of an incident which occurred on the bridge about 9 o'clock, and every member of it accepted it as a fact that the old lady had succeeded in eluding their vigilance and had ended her suffering of her own volition. The incident was this:

TRIED TO CLIMB OVER RAIL.

When W. E. Fitzgerald of 1121 Chestnut street was nearing the west end of the bridge, on his way from East St. Louis, he saw a woman trying to clamber over the railing He was on a car, but leaped from it and reached her before she succeeded in getting over. She was about 65 years old, feeble and wore a shawl thr[illegible] loosely about her shoulders. He talke[illegible] with her, and had, he thought, dissuad[illegible] her from her apparent purpose, so [illegible] continued

THE COUNTRY DEMANDS ARBITRATION

Arbitration and the settlement of the coal strike, the resumption of coal mining and the production in the market of anthracite coal for the stoves and furnaces of the United States, is the one crying need of the hour. The whole country demands that the strike be settled and the coal famine ended by arbitration.

For nearly four months the coal barons have made no effort either to work their mines or to effect a settlement by any means or upon any terms with the dissatisfied workmen. They have declined to arbitrate. They have refused to compromise. They have done nothing except to dole out their stores of coal at more than double normal prices.

This policy is a strike against the public need and the universal welfare.

All eyes are turned to J. Pierpont Morgan as the one man who has the power to induce an end to the strike by exerting an influence upon the great coal railroads that they could not disregard.

Since the strike began, on May 12 last, the sufferings of the miners and those directly dependent upon them—nearly 500,000 human beings—have been shared to a degree by the people of every state. The zone of suffering has been gradually extending, until now it covers the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the gulf to the northern boundary. As the threatened coal famine comes nearer and nearer, the evils of the great strike come closer and closer home to each individual. No household dependent to the slightest extent on the burning of hard coal can escape.

The loss of life, limb and property from the bloodshed and rioting consequent upon the shutting down of the mines, the gathering of idle men and the calling out of extra police and the state troops of Pennsylvania has been great. The money loss to miners and operators alike has been in the millions. The loss to the community caused by the paralyzing effect on great and small industries of the general shortage of coal cannot be estimated in figures.

Anthracite Mine and Railroad Barons Must Obey His Command.

THEY ARE HIS CREATURES

He Is in Personal Control of All but Two of These Companies.

SETTLED FORMER STRIKES

Now the Whole Country Demands That the Fight Be Ended.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—J. Pierpont Morgan could stop the coal strike in an hour if he wished to do so.

The railroads, a majority of whose stocks are deposited with his firm as trustees, mine and haul to market over 65 per cent of all the hard coal consumed in the eastern states.

The presidents of these railroads are men who agree with Mr. Morgan.

If they disagreed with him they would be dismissed, as President McLeod of the Reading was when he opposed Mr. Morgan's policy.

The largest single producer of anthracite coal in the world is the Reading Railroad and Coal Co. It was in September, 1896, reorganized by Mr. Morgan's firm. All the shares of stock in the new company are now deposited with Mr. Morgan as one of three trustees. Mr. Morgan names the directors and, through them, elects the officers.

The second largest producer of anthracite coal in the country is the Lehigh Valley Railroad, which operates 2871 miles of railroad. It can also mine 1,000,000 tons of coal per month from its 34,000 acres of coal lands. This company was in 1897 reorganized by J. P. Morgan, who purchased outright 75,000 shares of its stock, about one-half of the holdings of the Asa Packer estate.

In January, 1901, Mr. Morgan purchased the remaining half of the Packer stock. This gave him practical control of this company, its president and policy.

The third largest producer of anthracite coal is the Central Railroad of New Jersey, which besides operating 677 miles of railroad in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, owns the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal Co. and mines about 7,000,000 tons of anthracite coal a year.

MORGAN PLACED BAER IN POWER.

Of the $27,000,000 of stock of this company, J. Pierpont Morgan personally bought outright $14,500,000 par value in January, 1901. When asked about this transaction at the time he said for publication:

"It's my private affair and nobody's business what I am going to do with the road."

He afterward turned this stock over to the Reading company and made Mr. Baer president of both roads.

Another very large producer of anthracite is the Erie Railway. It operates 2271 miles of railroad, owns 63,000 acres of coal lands and hauls over 12,000,000 tons of coal a year. This company in December, 1895, was also reorganized by J. P. Morgan & Co. All the original stock of the road is still in the keeping of Mr. Morgan as trustee, with Lewis Fitzgerald and Sir Charles Tenant. The trustees name the directors and officers of the company.

The directors of the Reading are, beside Mr. Morgan as chairman of the trustees, three of his junior partners—Charles Steele, J. Lowber Welsh of Philadelphia and Samuel Spencer, and a fourth director in his able personal counsel, Francis Lynde Stetson.

After reorganizing the Reading, the Erie and the Lehigh Valley Railroads, Mr. Morgan purchased in January, 1898, control of the New York, Susquehanna & Western, another coal carrying road. In 1891 he bought the Pennsylvania Coal Company and the Reading and Wyoming Valley Railroad, with their immense coal properties, paying $32,000,000 for the coal company, and thus brought under his control the [illegible]ge independent coal producer in [illegible]ry.

[illegible] the amount of coal to be [illegible] ets its also organized and controlled by Mr. Morgan—sells the entire output of the mines, regulates production and fixes uniform prices to retail dealers.

The Morgan companies actually mine and bring to market 65.6 per cent of all the anthracite coal consumed in the eastern states, President Thomas testified.

There is not an officer in any one of these companies who could not be summarily removed by Mr. Morgan. Not one would think for one instant of resisting his slightest wish, not to say command. They all know that their future depends upon his good will.

During the critical weeks of the last presidential campaign in October, 1900, there was a strike of anthracite miners. Senator Hanna went to the office of Mr. Morgan early in October, 1900, and, as he left it, he stated to a score of reporters who waited at the door that the coal strike would be settled.

And the next morning it was settled.

It required only a word from Mr. Morgan to do it.

A year afterward about 40,000 amalgamated steel and iron workers struck.

When the steel workers' strike reached its crisis the president, Mr. Shaffer, came to New York and went secretly to Mr. Morgan's office. In less than half an hour the terms of peace were settled by Mr. Shaffer as the head of the union and by Mr. Morgan, who controlled so absolutely all the iron and steel mills of the country that he did not have to ask any one's advice or consent about what he should or should not do about wages.

Some of Mr. Shaffer's followers afterward repudiated his bargain with Mr. Morgan and refused to be bound by it, but none of Mr. Morgan's iron and steel mills mutinied against Mr. Morgan or for one instant refused to pay the wages he had promised in their name without asking their consent.

The strike was settled on Mr. Morgan's terms.

He could settle the coal strike in the same way today if he wished.

HEWITT DEFENDS OPERATORS

Capitalist Says Demands to Unionize Mines Is Unconstitutional and Should eB Refused.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 26.—Abram S. Hewitt, when asked today whether arbitration was not the only means that remained whereby the great anthracite coal strike might be ended, and whether or not it was an equitable solution of the differences, said:

"For a quarter of a century I have uniformly maintained the right and the duty of association, both on the part of the employers and employes.

"I am quite clear that the claims of Mr. Mitchell and the organization over which he presides are in contravention of the principles of free government and of the rights of men to earn their living in any lawful way, without interference from organized capital.

"The unhappy controversy now existing is not based upon any reasonable claim which labor can make for shorter hours or better wages.

"It is notorious that the real object is to secure the recognition of the national organization as an authority entitled to decide upon the rate of wages and the conditions of labor in the coal fields, wherever situated.

"If this demand be conceded, it will not be possible for any man, not holding a union card, to secure employment in the coal fields. This will amount to a denial of the right of every man to sell his labor in a free market. The concession of this demand will make Mr. Mitchell the dictator of the coal business and put him in control of votes to decide the next presidential election.

The right to labor is inherent in every human being and cannot be surrendered without the sacrifice of individual liberty and of private property. In my judgment the operators are only doing their plain duty in declining to arbitrate a question which is in the domain of conscience and involves the personal liberty of the individual.

"The only solution of the trouble is for Mr. Mitchell to order the strike off with[illegible] is d[illegible] if there be greivances to be abated, they will be promptly adjusted between the local operators and the local unions.

"The consequences of such strikes are so disastrous, not merely to the parties directly concerned but to the whole community, that every effort should be made as soon as the existing strike has been called off and the excitement abated to prevent by appropriate legislation the recurrence of such calamitous conflicts where everybody is injured and no one is benefited.

"The enactment of such legislation will not be attended with more difficulty than in the case of other disputes, now regulated by law and subject to the adjudication of the courts.

"Such disastrous conflicts will cease to recur and arbitration may then well be invoked to settle local disputes.

"The demand for arbitration comes with an ill grace from a leader who began the conflict with an order calling on the engineers, firemen and pumpmen to abandon their task, thus exposing the mines to utter ruin. To rule or ruin is not a policy which commends itself to the American people, who believe in the old-fashioned rule, that he who demands equity must first do equity."

"DIVINE RIGHT" OF OPERATORS

The Attitude of Coal Baron Baer Arouses the Wrath of Churchmen.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—The attitude of the coal operators—represented by the Big Seven, the presidents of the big railroads which control the anthracite monopoly, is as untenable as would be the attempt of any seven men in the United States to oppose the will of the voting millions when an opportunity is given to record the expression of that will. In the face of the universal demand that the strike be ended, that industrial and domestic peace be granted to the business men and the householders of this country, President Baer of the Reading, as spokesman for the mine-owners' combine, has prated of the "divine right" of those who control the coal fields.

The storm of indignation aroused by Mr. Baer's letter has been voiced most hotly by the clergymen of the United States who resent bitterly his snatching at a religious cloak to cover his betrayal of his public functions. President Baer makes this astounding declaration:

"The rights and interests of the laboring man will be protected, not by the labor agitators, but by the Christian men to whom God in his infinite wisdom has given the control of the property interests of the country."

The Rev. Father J. J. Curran of Wilkesbarre, Pa., in his first indignant comment on this remarkable utterance, said:

"If Mr. Baer claims the divine right (God save the mark) of ruling his property, he must concede divine right to the miners in working that property. Pharaoh, too, must have had the sanction of the gods to rule his land, but Pharaoh has been lying at the bottom of the Red Sea for many thousand years. By way of generalities I would say this: That the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof. He created it for man's use and benefit. Now, if a handful of American millionaires assume divine right to the Lord's earth, where do the people come in?"

The Rev. Christopher Hughes, pastor of St. Mary's Church, Fall River, Mass., said:

"I very much fear that the Christian men to whom Mr. Baer refers as the owners of property interests at this time are not doing their full duty. Christ loved the poor, and when rich coal operators are Christ-like they, too, will recognize the plain rights of the poor men who are banded in a union."

The Rev. Dr. W. O. Moore of Lynn, Mass., said:

"I wish the Christian employer showed a more Christian spirit toward the laboring class. In that event the problem would easily be solved and President Baer's ideas put into practice. It is not reasonable to suppose that a man who has taken a position similar to that of President Baer in the present struggle would be the proper person to guard the rights and interests of the laboring man."

The Rev. Dr. Morgan Wood, pastor of Plymouth Congregational Church of Cleveland said:

"It is an open question whether God has given these men control of the property interests or whether they have usurped it."

The Rev. J. J. Woolley of Pawtucket, one of the leading ministers of Rhode Island, said:

"I am rather inclined to think that God does not do his work in just the way President Ba[illegible] seems to think. I have never believed [illegible] God has chosen rich men practical[illegible] be his special agents to control property or other interests. All of Christ's disciples were poor men."

RAILROAD MEN ROBBED BOX CAR

Two Confess Part in Theft of Shoes.

THEY ACCUSE YARDMASTER

HE IS ARRESTED, BUT DENIES COMPLICITY.

Night Watchman and Former Yard Employe Admitted Guilt After Latter Had Been Captured With Plunder in His Possession.

The East St. Louis police and Assistant State's Attorney McMurdo of East St. Louis have secured statements from Henry Ellsworth and George Willis confessing their connection with a scheme to rob freight cars in the East St. Louis yards, and implicating Thomas Burns.

The three men have been arrested. Burns has given bond for his appearance Wednesday for preliminary hearing. The other two waived preliminary hearing in the court of Justice Boyne at East St. Louis Tuesday morning and were bound over to the East St. Louis grandjury in the sum of $800. They could not give bond and were locked up again.

The officials believe that the arrests will uncover extensive robberies which have been going on for several months, from which the Big Four Railroad has been the chief sufferer.

Ellsworth tried to sell several cases of shoes to a second-hand dealer on Market street Monday. The dealer was suspicious and told him to return later. He told Special Officers Dotzman and Shannon and they lay in wait. When Ellsworth returned they arrested him. He admitted that the shoes had been stolen, and implicated Willis and Burns.

Willis is night watchman for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad on the east side and Burns is night yardmaster for the Big Four. Ellsworth was formerly a railroad man.

Ellsworth said Willis was to meet him at his room, 1120 Market street, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. When he came the officers were waiting for him and arrested him. Burns was arrested by the East St. Louis police on the request by telephone of the St. Louis authorities.

Ellsworth and Willis were taken to the East Side, where they made detailed statements of their connection with the job.

According to Ellsworth's statement, he was approached Friday by Burns, who said that he was obliged to have money, and knew how they could both get plenty of money if Ellsworth would join him. Ellsworth expressed a readiness to do after he had been assured that there would be no danger of detection, and it was arranged that Burns should notify him when and where to get some goods and sell them and they would divide the proceeds.

Sunday evening, Ellsworth says, Burns came to him and told him to go to a certain car in the Big Four yards and get the cases of shoes. Ellsworth did so, and was caught in trying to sell them.

Ellsworth says he took Willis into the game after it had been unfolded to him by Burns.

Burns denies that there is any truth in the statement of Ellsworth or in that of Willis, which corroborates that of Ellsworth in a large measure.

Both Ellsworth and Willis insist that the theft of the shoes was the first job they had engaged in, and the officials are inclined to believe them.

Lieut. Thomas Walsh, who has been working on the case on the east side, said Tuesday morning that the Big Four had been missing goods for several months.

The railroad people are non-committal and the accused men will not talk other than to refer inquisitors to the statements which they have made to the authorities.

The police are confident of uncovering a systematic scheme of robbing freight cars in the East St. Louis yards.

Several men were arrested a few months ago on the same charge, but they were acquitted on account of a flaw in the case, a private detective in working up the case against them having technically committed the thefts himself, the men merely receiving the goods from his hands.

MINERS EAGER TO ARBITRATE

From the Beginning the Employes of the Mines Have Urged Settlement by Arbitration.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 26.—From the beginning of the strike the miners, through their recognized leaders, have been willing and anxious to submit to arbitration. They hailed the offer of mediation made by the Civic Federation with joy, and were greatly disappointed when the operators flatly refused to meet the conciliatory committee, with Senator Hanna and Bishop Potter, and discuss the differences with a view of arriving at an adjustment satisfactory to both sides. Throughout the four months of the strike the attitude of the mines has been that of reasonable human beings, prepared to submit their case to the tribunal of public opinion as represented by a fair commission of disinterested men, and abide by the decision laid down.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, the most powerful organization of wage-earners in the country, says:

"The miners in the anthracite coal regions have from the first urged that the contention between them and the mine owners be submitted to disinterested and impartial arbitration. Their position has been unchanged. If the demands of the miners were conceded it would not involve an increase of more than 20 cents on each ton of coal; yet through the perversity of the operators the price of coal to the people has increased more than $4 a ton, with prospects that they will be still more largely mulcted.

"Surely, if the miners' contention is unreasonable a volunteer board of arbitration would not sustain them. The miners have no alternative but to wage this contest to the bitter end, unless an honorable adjustment can be reached. They are fighting against a recurrence of conditions which for 25 years debased and degraded and almost enslaved them. In the fight they have the sympathy and support of all men who love justice and fair dealing and who are opposed to the deterioration of our people."

President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers has never changed his position that arbitration was the fair and the American way to settle the dispute between employers and employed. Before he left Chicago President Mitchell said again:

"I would be very glad to meet any committee that has for its purpose a settlement of the strike in the hard coal fields. The cause of the miners is just and we are now and always have been willing that it should go before any body of honest men for adjucation."

President Roosevelt has kept himself informed of the strike situation from the first. When the operators insolently spurned the offer of the Civic Federation last spring to arbitrate he sent Labor Commissioner Carroll D. Wright to learn all the facts connected with the dispute. The President has all along hoped that some means would be found whereby the differences between the operators and their men might be arbitrated, and it is known that he consulted with many eminent lawyers and officials to ascertain if there was any way by which arbitration could be forced on the operators.

The President received a voluminous report on the strike from Commissioner Wright a month ago. When he had finished its perusal he sent it to the attorney-general with a request that an opinion be furnished him by Mr. Knox whether or not the combination of the coal carrying railroads does not constitute a violation of the anti-trust law.

Attorney-General Knox has made no announcement of his decision in response to the President's request that he consider Mr. Wright's report with a view to taking action in the courts if such action is feasible. If he has examined the question himself and come to a decision only President Roosevelt knows of it. Labor Commissioner Wright has not given any inkling as to the facts or recommendations contained in his report. Mr. Wright is an ardent advocate of the system of trade boards of conciliation and arbitration, which are a great factor in the industrial world of Europe.

across the bridge, and she walked slowly in the opposite direction.

He had advanced only a few steps when he was startled by the sound of a splash in the water. Turning and running back, he leaned over the railing and saw a small dark object float for a few seconds on the surface of the river and then sink from view. The woman he had addressed a moment before was nowhere to be seen and he reached the conclusion that she had clambered over the rail after he left her and plunged to her death. He communicated his story to the police.

It is almost certain her relatives think that the strange woman was Mrs. Bischoff. Her clothing, her age, her feebleness—everything tallies with the description of the missing woman, and her family are mourning her as dead. They have accepted the supposition as a fact and are simply waiting for her body to be found in the water.

REFUSED MEDICINE.

Monday morning she refused to take the medicine which Dr. Luedeking prescribed for her, stating that it was not necessary. For twenty years she had suffered from cancer. For three days she has been unable to swallow a mouthful of food and her condition was becoming unbearable. It is now believed that her mind was made up in the morning to kill herself, and she waited patiently all during the day until the darkness fell and she could escape without observation.

Mrs. Bischoff was of youthful appearance. She habitually wore a dark wig, and this concealed the slight gray of her hair. And she always wore a cassimere shawl over her shoulders and another about her head in the Spanish fashion.

She had often told her oldest son that should anything ever happen to her, he would find everything she cared about in a large clothes basket, which stood in the kitchen. So, on Monday night a search was instituted there in the hope that a note or some clew could be found. But only a lot of jewelry, old-fashioned, but valuable, and a sum of money was found. Mrs. Bischoff owned the house she lived in and some other real estate, and she also had a good bank account.

She was Miss Francisca Henneberg before her marriage with George Bischoff. Her father was a prominent musician in those early days of St. Louis and her husband was the first civil engineer in St. Louis. She left six children: Mrs. Minnie Gottschalk, Mrs. J. H. Hartman, Mrs. Andrew Franz, F. L. Bischoff, a mail carrier; Rudolph Bischoff, a paper carrier, in East St. Louis, and Rudolph Bischoff, who is secretary of the Street Department.

CHANGES IN THE FOOTBALL RULES

Expert Thinks New Regulations Will Not Materially Alter the Game.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Regarding the changes in this year's football rules, a prominent authority on the game says:

"It does not seem to me that the changes will very materially affect the game. The one of most importance is, of course, the one about changing goals after a touchdown or a goal, and this would sometimes make very considerable difference.

"Under the old rules, if there was a strong wind and that wind died down in the second half, only one team got the benefit of it.

A most serious objection to the change may prove to be that the shifting of goals will mix up the spectators somewhat.

"It is safe to say that the general public will notice no alterations in the play by the changes in the rest of the rules, except that penalties are more generally five yards than ten yards. This is evidently based upon the hope that the officials will be more strict in enforcing them.

"I do not see anything in the rules which makes any very radical alterations in the style of coaching teams."

SANTOS-DUMONT DISGUSTED

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Santos-Dumont says he is disgusted with the United States and declares that its show of interest in aeronautics is a "gigantic bluff."

"In fact,' says Santos-Dumont, "I might have known in the first place that France is the only nation possessing sufficient imagination and faith to enter seriously and confidently on such a field. My experience in England and the United States proves that the Anglo-Saxons have not the necessary temperament, and that, therefore, France must remain the scene of the aeronauts' future struggles with the air until the problem is solved.

"New Yorkers will be willing to put up money only when millionaires promise to take up airshipping as a fad. Chicago's talk has proved to be merely hot air.

"In short, America's entire attitude toward the matter is one pure, gigantic bluff. I lost time and furnished food for the comic papers. That was all my trip to the United States amounted to."

Only in St. Louis, he says, are his efforts appreciated and he will reciprocate the genuine interest shown there by returning to the United States to compete for the World's Fair prize. With that exception, he will operate only in France hereafter.

Paris' opinion of Santos is that he has a severe attack of head-swelling and that it is making him so ridiculous that he is not only injuring himself, but the cause of areonautics as well. The Aero Club is displeased with him and will not give him substantial aid.

CATARRH OF THE BOWELS

Often Causes Hemorrhage of the Bowels.

(An Interesting Letter from Mrs. Tinker, of Georgia, Concerning Her Grandson.)

MRS. S. L. TINKER, 510 Second street, Macon, Ga., writes:

"Two years ago my grandson suffered with hemorrhages of the bowels and he was treated by different doctors, but without cure. We quit all other treatment and began to use Peruna, and after the use of three bottles he seemed to be quite well. He is able now to walk six miles to school every day. Peruna has certainly worked wonders for him and I shall not hesitate to recommend it."—Mrs. S. L. Tinker.

Hemorrhage of the bowels is frequently the result of catarrh of the bowels. The catarrh produces slight ulcers, and these ulcers eat their way through and cut off the small veins or arteries. It is useless to try to stop this hemorrhage without trying to cure the catarrh. This explains why it is that Peruna makes so many cures of hemorrhage of the bowels permanently. Peruna cures the catarrh and thus removes the ulcers. The ulcers being removed, the blood vessels are no longer cut off. The hemorrhage discontinues. This is a much surer, better and more lasting way to cure hemorrhage of the bowels than to use some styptic to attempt to dry up the blood.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

WHOLE CARLOAD OF THIS FAMILY

40 SILVERNAILS AND STUCKS AT UNION STATION.

ON THEIR WAY TO A REUNION.

They Are From Michigan and Are to Be Entertained by Relatives in Johnson, Neb.

Sidetracked under the Union Station trainshed Tuesday is a family carload of farmers and their wives from Hillsdale County, Michigan.

They are en route to Johnson, Neb., to attend a reunion of the Silvernail and Stuck families. There the Silvernails and Stucks to the number of 75 will be entertained by Franklin Stuck, a well-to-do retired farmer.

There are about forty members of the Michigan party. All of them are either named Silvernail or Stuck or have married women of those names.

For several years the reunions have been held annually in Michigan, but this year the Nebraska relatives pleaded for the privilege of entertaining and were given it.

Martin Stuck, a member of the party at Union Station, says that his father, Samuel Stuck, married a Miss Silvernail in Michigan and that all the members of the reunion association are descendants or relatives of these descendants by marriage.

Among the others in the party are Milton L. and S. J. Stuck, P. A. and Alonzo Silvenrail and their respective wives. R. J. Raymond, who married into the ranks of the reunionists, is president of the reunion association. He is in charge of the party.

AMERICANS INVADE ITALY.

Will Supply Power to Turin From Lake Forty Miles Away.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—An American company has just secured a contract calling for the construction of a hydraulic power plant which is intended to generate power to be transmitted to the city of Turin, northern Italy.

The power station will be built on the Mont Cenis Lake and the energy will be transmitted about forty miles. The initial plant will have a capacity of 5000 horsepower.

THE LIFE AND DEATH OF OUTLAW HARRY TRACY

. . . By Frank James. . . .

A FINE MORAL - - A THRILLING STORY

This remarkable story by a remarkable man began in the last Sunday's Post-Dispatch and will appear exclusively in daily installments in the Post-Dispatch, the final chapter being published in the issue of next Sunday.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Harry Tracy, a boy in an eastern village, found a companion in "Desperate Dick," a runaway boy who came to town with a pocketful of dime novels. Association with this boy and the reading of the lurid tales made Harry and his chum, Dave Merrill, the bad boys of the village. They organized a "gang" and began to pilfer in a small way.

Harry Tracy, like all boys, has a sweetheart and wears her picture in his watch. She turns against him because of his evil habits. Harry and Dave Merrill run away from home and are heard from in Colorado, where Harry is said to have killed a cattleman and shot a deputy sheriff.

CHAPTER III.

The Convict.

The City of Portland was overrun with burglars. For months past the most daring nocturnal robberies had been reported to the police department almost every morning. Stores and the dwellings of the rich residents were entered by men skilled in the use of the jimmy, and no safe or strongbox seemed proof against their tools.

Cash, jewelry, family plate—everything of negotiable value fell into the maw of the thieves. Families would awaken at the usual hour and discover that a window or a door had been pried open and midnight visitors had entered, ransacking the house from cellar to attic, going into the sleeping chambers with impunity, and carrying away whatever they found that could be turned into money.

"There's a gang," said the chief of police.

"Yes," assented the lieutenant, "an organized gang."

"I'll wager my month's salary," said the chief, "that Patsy McGoogle has something to do with this wholesale burglary; and it looks to me like some of it may be the work of Billy the Kid."

"That may be, cap'n," remarked a quiet-looking man in citizen's clothes. "But I've got my own opinion as to the gang. I should say there's only two men in it, and that's not so much of a gang, is it? Incidentally, I know where to lay my hands on these two men, but they are desperate characters, and I shall need a squad of good men to help bag 'em."

The chief looked incredulous, but he knew that the speaker was one of the most acute detectives in Oregon.

"Who are the burglars?" he inquired.

"Their real names I don't know," answered Detective Weiner; "but the record of one of them I happen to have on file in my head. He shot a man named Hoy, a ranchman or cowboy, in Colorado, and another man is serving a life sentence for the crime. The man in prison was a member of this fellow's gang, however. The man now operating in Portland escaped, killing a deputy in his flight.

"Prior to that time he had been captured by 'tenderfeet' detectives, who played a trick upon him, for robbing a store in Utah.

"He was sent to the Utah penitentiary for eight years. One day, with half a dozen other convicts, he was sent to do some road grading near the prison, in charge of one guard.

"This fellow managed to bend his shovel blade, by main strength, and when the guard went to help him fix it he plucked a revolver from the guard's pocket and got the drop on him.

"The other convicts crowded around, and this man compelled the guard to exchange clothing with him.

"He then marched the entire party, including the guard, as a supposed convict, several miles down the road, and all the prisoners escaped.

"The fugitive then went to Colorado, and, after the murder I have mentioned, he took to the brush.

"Some time later he was captured, so weak from lack of food that he was unable to fire a gun which he had taken from a man he killed.

"They jailed him at Aspen, Colo., and the governor of Utah asked that he be extradited.

"But before this was attended to he escaped from jail, beating the jailer into insensibility with a poker. He then came to Oregon and—"

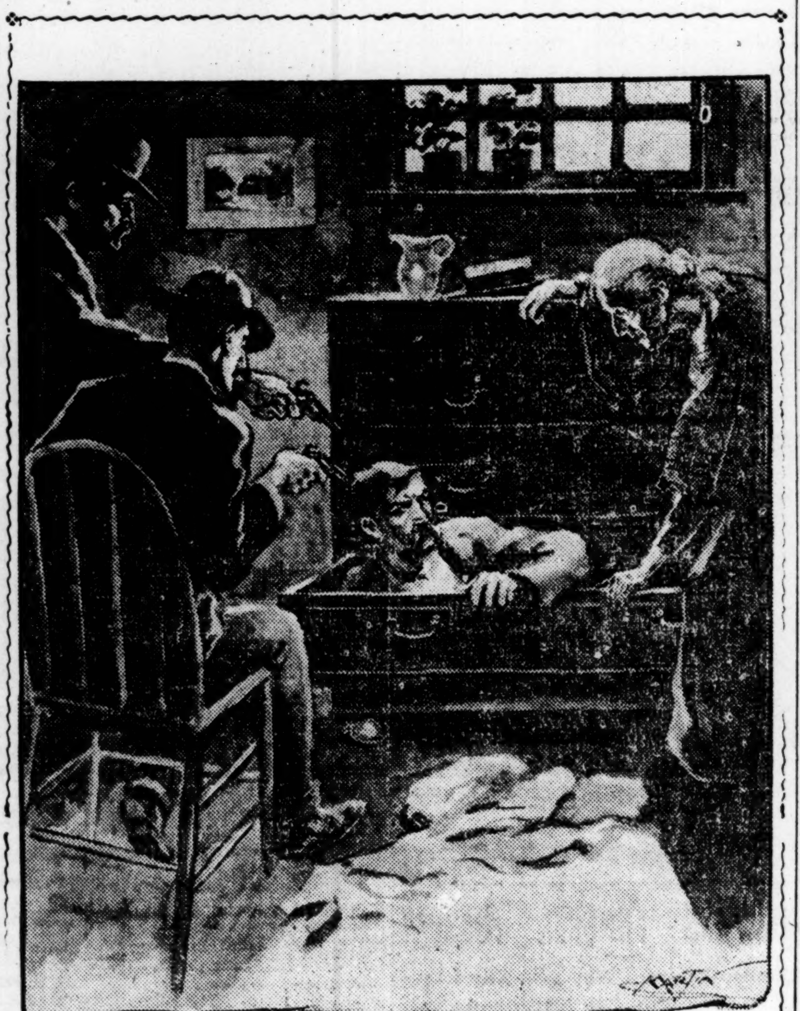
"It's Harry Garr you're talking about, of course," interrupted the chief.

"Surely you don't mean to say that the notorious Harry Garr is one of the burglars you have spotted?"

"I mean just that, cap'n," responded the detective. "He went by that name in Utah and by another in Colorado.

"One of his aliases, or it may be his real name, is Tracy. He and a fellow named Dave Merrill—"

"Look here," said the chief, excitedly, "if those men are in Portland, and you have located them, it will be a fine catch; but it won't be a picnic to take them."



"There, curled up and trying to worm himself into a position so that he could use his revolver, they found Dave Merrill."

"Give me five men and I'll do it," said the detective, in a quiet manner.

"Where are they?"

"Living in a little house down by the bay with an old woman who is said to be a relative of Merrill."

That night Detective Weiner, with five of his fellow-members of the force, proceeded to the little house down by the bay. Every door and window had been located previously, and the leader of the posse posted his men so that no one could escape without being seen.

He knocked at the front door and was admitted by the woman. As he had surmised, a man attempted to leave the house by the back door as he stepped into the front room. Seeing the officers there the man turned back into the house.

After a brief parley the old woman said: "You can search every room; there's nobody here but me."

The leader called two of his men into the house and a search was made. Apparently no one was there. But the acute detective observed that in a certain small room the old woman appeared nervous.

The officers re-entered this room. Its chief piece of furniture was an old-fashioned chest of drawers, unusually large.

The officers opened two of the drawers and found only a quantity of wearing apparel. They opened the lower drawer.

There, curled up and trying to worm herself into a position so that he could use his revolver, they found David Merrill.

"Harry Tracy has betrayed us!" the old woman cried. "If you want to capture him I can get him to come here."

By an agreement with the officers she sent word to Tracy that Merrill wanted to see him.

Tracy arrived shortly, only one of the detectives being visible. This officer was introduced to him as a friend of Merrill's brother and he suspected nothing.

"Show me around the town a little, Mr. Tracy," the stranger requested. "I've just got into the city."

"Sure," assented Tracy, and he went out for a walk with his new acquaintance.

Presently, however, Tracy began to grow suspicious. The detective overdid his part.

"See that train?" remarked Tracy, as a freight pulled by.

"Yes," the detective answered.

"Well, so long; I'm going to take it." Whereupon he swung himself into the engine.

Detective Weiner reached for his revolver. Tracy fired once at him and the officer fell, severely wounded; but Weiner was game. He arose and telephoned the news up the track.

With his revolver at the engineer's ear Tracy ordered that the train pull out at full speed.

The result was that Tracy was taken after he left the train, being knocked down by a big butcher whom he tried to pass on a run.

"Next time," growled Tracy, "I won't be so easy."

Tracy and Merrill were sent to the Oregon penitentiary in the little city of Salem. Merrill's sentence was for 13 years, but Tracy was condemned to spend 20 years in the prison, the extra seven being added for shooting the detective.

The two men were set to work in the stove foundry. Every morning at 6 o'clock they arose and cleaned up their cells. Half an hour later they fell into the lockstep and marched to the great, ill-smelling hall where the convicts eat their meals.

A breakfast of black coffee, warmed-over potatoes, greasy bacon and water was eaten in absolute silence from tin dishes placed upon long wooden tables. The men sat on wooden benches, close together.

They were served by silent men in stripes, like themselves. Each man lifted his tin cup for coffee as a convict passed behind the line carrying a huge coffee-pot. There was no sugar, no cream.

Cream and sugar are not a part of the convict's fare. They are the luxuries of liberty, which the convict cannot afford.

The bread was not buttered. Butter is another of the luxuries of liberty. It is not one of the necessaries of life. Men in stripes, sitting silent in long rows on wooden benches, clad in a miserable monotony of stripes, receive only the necessaries of life. They have forfeited the luxuries.

It is a part of their punishment.

After the scant breakfast, Tracy and Merrill again fell into the lockstep. The long line, like a great striped serpent, wormed its way out into the courtyard paved with stone, across to a stone building inside the stone wall, in stony silence.

Here the striped serpent, like the joint-snake of the plains, fell apart. Each joint, each convict, went to his appointed place.

The machinery began to whirr and whizz and the silence was broken.

But all day long it was a miserable monotone of noise, a machine-made noise, a manless murmur of wheels.

For a convict to speak to his fellow meant bread-and-water diet, the dungeon, perhaps the whipping post.

At noon again the serpentine lockstep line, and again the scant fare, and again the stone building inside the stone wall.

At dusk again the lockstep, the scant meal, the stone cell, and silence.

Stone is hard. The life is hard, the work is hard. Tracy and Merrill, fresh from freedom of the streets and the green fields and the blue skies, for their misdeeds were made over into men of the stone age.

In the cell only, for a limited time before being ordered to their hard cots, the men are permitted to speak, each to his cellmate. Speech is one of the necessaries of life. Without it men will go mad in time.

"When is your time up?" Tracy inquired of his cellmate, Jim White, one evening, while he was pasting upon the stone wall of his cell a little photograph, cut to a circle.

"Who's the calico?" inquired White.

"It's a girl I used to know—back home," said Tracy, almost angrily. "I asked you when you got out?"

"A month from today."

"Take me along?"

"Don't see how I can," replied White.

"But I see," Harry Tracy said. "And I've got a pal here—Dave Merrill; works with us in the stove foundry. You are to take him along, too."

"What's your game, Tracy?"

"Have you been here for years and never noticed how weak the guard is on the south wall at night?" Tracy asked, contemptuously. "It would be easy for a man to get into this pen from the outside."

"But how the —— is that going to help a man get out of it from the inside?"

Tracy laughed, a cold, harsh laugh.

"Say, Whitey, you've got things to learn yet. How would you like to come back to this ranch for about five minutes, after you're let free next month?"

"Wouldn't like it for a cent," Wright responded. "I'm not fond of this here corral, Mr. Tracy; are you?"

"No more than you are; and, what's more, I'm going to give it the go-by. And you're going to help me. If you don't I'll see that you're potted before you enjoy a week of glad rags. I reckon you've heard of Mr. Harry Tracy before you met me, haven't you?"

The other convict shuddered. Just then the corridor guard called "Lights out," and Tracy, grumbling at the interruption, which meant silence for the night, blew out his flickering candle.

Two or three times that night Harry Tracy chuckled, and the guard thought he was laughing in his sleep.

"Dreaming of home, poor devil, maybe," said the guard to himself.

But the guard was not acquainted with Mr. Harry Tracy.

(To be continued in the Post-Dispatch tomorrow. The next chapter tells of the escape.

STATE KNIGHTS TO GATHER.

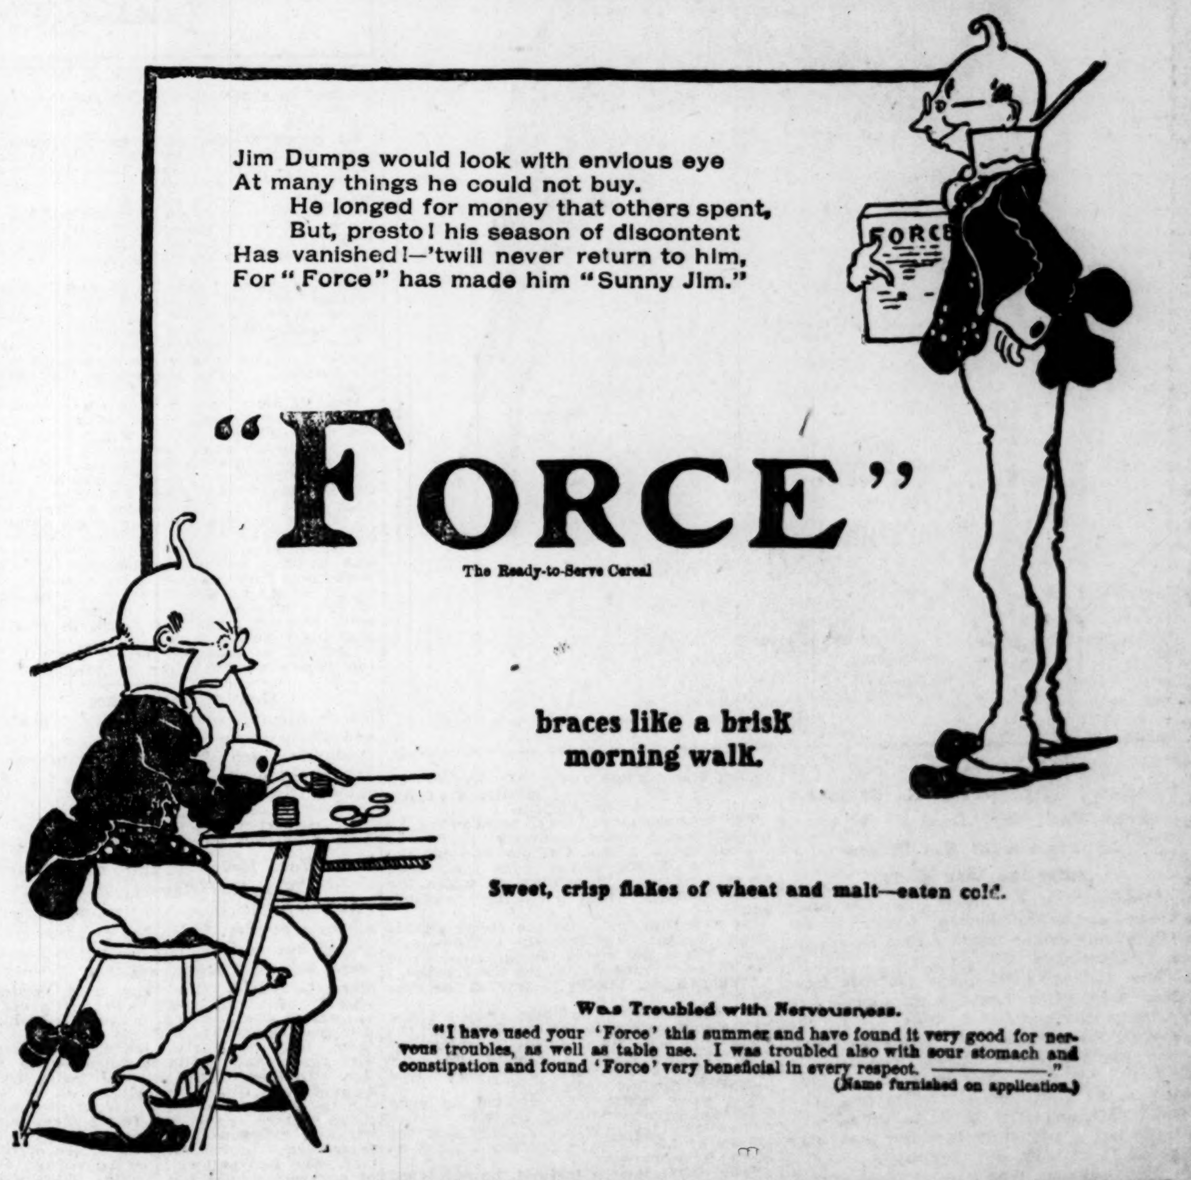
Catholic Organization Will Meet Here Sept. 9.

The eleventh annual convention of the Catholic Knights of America, Missouri Council, will be held Sept. 9 and 10 in St. Louis. Much interest is being taken in this gathering and in the convention of the Knights of Father Mathew, which is to be held in Kansas City, Kan., Oct. 13, 14 and 15.

The delegates to the St. Louis gathering of Catholic Knights will meet on the morning of September at the water tower, Twentieth street and East Grand avenue, and march to the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Succor, Twentieth and Linton streets. High mass will be celebrated at 9:30 o'clock, and the convention will open immediately after in the parish school hall.

An afternoon session, a trolley ride and a visit to a theater or a summer garden will be made the first day and night, and on the second day a requiem mass will be held, and business will be concluded at the afternoon session.

The officers of the order are: Archbishop Kane, spiritual director; B. F. Brinker, president; Charles Welsch, first vice-president; B. Brueggemann, second vice-president; Leon Yealy, third vice-president; M. J. E. Hartman, secretary, and Andrew Zipt, treasurer.



Jim Dumps would look with envious eye
At many things he could not buy.
He longed for money that others spent,
But, presto! his season of discontent
Has vanished!—'twill never return to him,
For "Force" has made him "Sunny Jim."

SIDENER'S METHODS PLEASED PASTOR

REV. CARROLL SHARED BENCH WITH JUDGE THIS MORNING.

DEPLORES NEED OF COURTS

Remarked Upon Expedition With Which the Magistrate Got at the Heart of the Cases.

Rev. Irby Carroll, a Congregationalist minister of Dallas, Tex., shared the bench of the City Hall police court Tuesday morning with Judge Sidener.

He listened attentively to the evidence and the judge's comments in each case. After adjournment he said to the Post-Dispatch:

"What I have seen and heard here this morning has been to me pathetic as well as interesting. I could not help thinking as these women and men were brought before the bar that each of them was some mother's child. And that was sad to contemplate.

"In the majority of cases I was interested more by the methods of Judge Sidener than by the evidence. The expedition with which he got to the heart of the trouble in of the cases brought before was surprising to me. He seemed to analyze each case thoroughly before I could get an idea of what it was about.

"It was the first time I ever was in a police court, and I am glad I attended the session. I think I shall use what I saw and heard there in a sermon when I return home. The crowded condition of the police court docket is, to my mind, an argument for the observance for the law of Christ. If people obeyed the law of Christ there would seldom be any need for police courts.

"Throughout the session this morning I had in mind the biblical verse: O, Israel, thou hast destroyed theyself; but in me is thine help.'

"These men and women whom I saw this morning had destroyed themselves."

Rev. Mr. aCrroll is a graduate of Smith Academy in the class of '85. He studied in law in St. Louis, but before he was admitted decided to devote his life to the ministry. He was ordained in Texas. At Smith Academy he was a fellow-student of City Attorney Perry Post Taylor, whose guest he was Tuesday morning.

Parish Party Postponed.

St. Bridget's Parish lawn party has been postponed from Tuesday until Thursday evening because of the uncertainty of the weather. It will be held Thursday evening in the school hall at Jefferson avenue and Stoddard street. Dancing and euchre will be the amusements.

This Official Seized an Alleged Wifebeater

COL. JOHNSON HELD ON TO A PRISONER

PROSECUTOR WOULD NOT TURN HIS MAN LOOSE.

CAPTIVE WAS NOT A GIANT

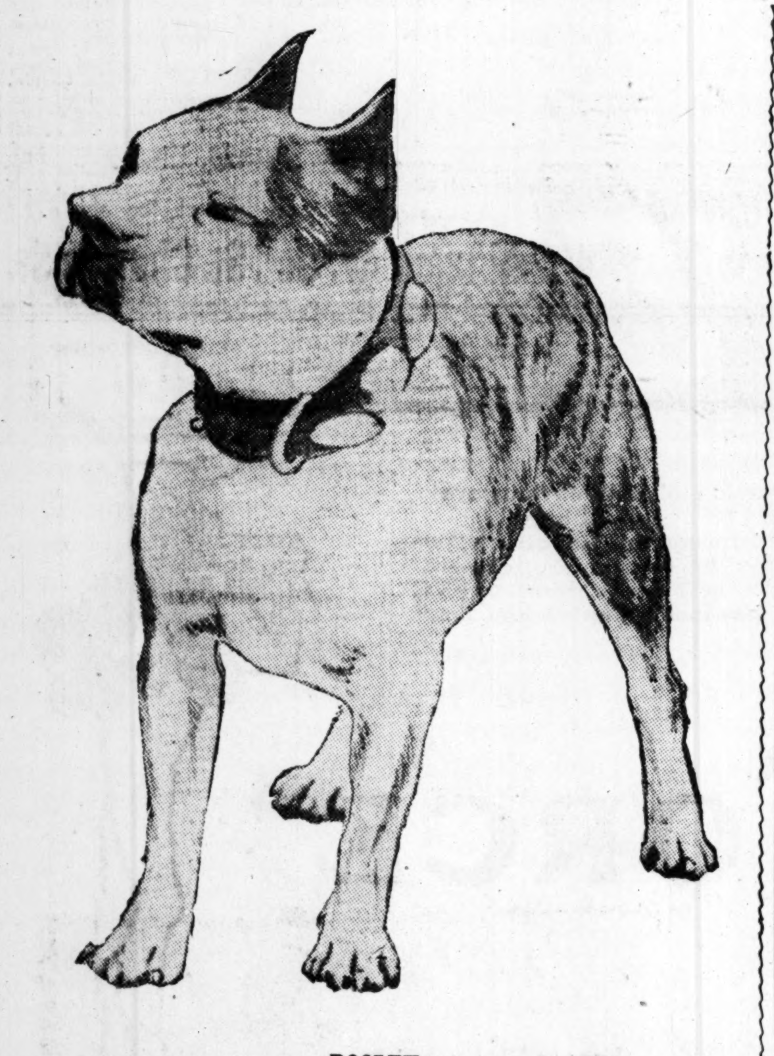
He Weighed About 110 Pounds and Was So Small He Almost Wriggled Away.

Col. Richard Johnson, assistant prosecuting attorney, made George Redding, charged with wife beating, a prisoner in his office Monday afternoon and held him securely until a warrant against him had been filled out and a policeman had taken him into custody.

Redding entered the warrant office, saying that he expected his wife to apply for a warrant against him, and that he wanted his side of the case to be heard. Just then the woman entered to make the application. Redding threatened his wife, and Johnson seized him. Telling Attorney Fickeissen to fill out a warrant, Col. Johnson held the man until a policeman arrived.

Redding is about 5 feet 5 inches in height and weighs 110 pounds.

THIS DOG RODE FROM NEW YORK TO ST. LOUIS ON A PULLMAN PASS



DOOLEY.

"Dooley," Mrs. David R. Calhoun's Pet, Was "Mr. Dooley" When Application for His Ttransportation Was Made.

"Dooley," Mrs. David R. Calhoun's brown and white Boston terrier, is St. Louis' only canine resident that travels on a Pullman pass.

Mrs. Calhoun's pet quadruped rode from New York to St. Louis, with stopovers at Atlantic City and Hot Springs, Va., on the same style of pass that furnished transportation for herself and her husband.

It differed from their pass only in that it bore the name "Mr. Dooley" where theirs read "Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Calhoun."

It's not a bad story how the pass happened to be made out that way.

Mrs. Calhoun, who is a bride of only a year, spent the Easter holidays with her father, Dr. B. T. Whitmore of New York City, who is a prominent physician and editor of the New York Medical Journal.

While Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun were in New York she saw the dog "Dooley" and purchased him. He had made a record as a winner of bench show prizes in the three years of his existence.

When the time for their return to St. Louis approached Dr. Whitmore wrote to a railroad friend in Washington for passes. At the urgent request of his daughter he added a request for transportation for the dog.

ansportation

railroad man promptly sent the and Mrs. Calhoun, but apologized bility to furnish any transporta- dog.

Whitmore, ever eager to please thought out a happy plan. in to the same railroad man asking transportation for "Mr. Dooley" to St. Louis with stopover privileges at Atlantic City and Hot Springs.

The transportation was forthcoming as quickly as the mails could carry it.

When Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun boarded the train the Boston terrier with them bore about his neck a brass plate on which the name "Dooley" was brilliantly resplendent.

He was squeezed past the ebony guards of the Pullman and into the Calhoun section. When the conductor appeared there Mr. Calhoun handed him the three pases.

"Where's Mr. Dooley?" queried the conductor.

Whereupon Mrs. Calhoun produced the bean-eating terrier to the amazement of the ticket-puncher. He seemed to enjoy the joke as much as the Calhouns and made no effort to interfere with the "third party" to the proceedings.

The same scene was enacted on each Pullman occupied during the trip.

Since "Dooley" arrived in St. Louis the effects of his Pullman journey have been distinctly apparent.

True to his Boston instinct, he developed aristocratic tendencies at once. He has declined to associate with any of the dogs in the vicinity of the Calhoun residence, 3744 Lindell boulevard.

He scoffs at the pastimes of ordinary dogs, such as lounging about the family stable. Instead, he seeks the companionship of the art treasures and the bric-a-brac in the Calhoun parlors.

His favorite diversion is coaching. From the top of the Calhoun tally-ho he surveys with infinite scorn the plebian dogs that are compelled to travel the dusty, muddy streets.

No dog meat from the neighborhood butcher will his blue-blood appetite appease. Only dog biscuits of the most delicate variety tickle his epicurean palate.

Occasionally, however, he chases the family cat up a tree in the back yard just for exercise. In this alone is he like other dogs.

Mrs. Calhoun approves of his exclusive tastes. She regards him as a supreior dog and declares that he will prove it at the first bench show held in St. Louis.

"His fine points," Mrs. Calhoun told the Post-Dispatch, "are his neck and his tail. His neck is thick and there is a lump in the back of it that is considered a fine point by the dog fanciers. Then there is a natural kink in his tail which they also approve."

Mrs. Calhoun is very fond of "Dooley" and he has become well-known on the boulevards from his successive appearances on top of the Calhoun tally-ho by the side of the charming matron whom Mr. Calhoun brought from New York to preside over his beautiful home.

Hoshino, a Japanese house servant, is the immediate custedian of "Dooley."

PERILS OF FISHERMEN.

Two Were Never Found and Others Were Lost Several Days.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—The fishing schooner Stanley, which has returned from Bering Sea, reports that on May 18 Second Mate Manuel Codaza was lost during a storm in Bristol Bay. His dory, waterlogged and empty, was picked up several days later. On June 8 four dories were hidden from sight by a dense fog. One of them, that of Martin Socfin, was never een again, and Scofin is supposed to be lost. Another of the missing dories, containing John Quist, was picked up by the Stanley after an absence of four days and three nights. Quist was feeble from hunker and exposure. The other boats contained Hans Larsen and Olaf Olsen of this city, who had shipped for the voyage out of curiosity to see the Arctic. They were lost in the fog for ten days and nights. After being tossed about for four days they made land and lived on raw fish until picked up by the Stanley.

PECULIAR SEQUEL TO AQUATIC CONTEST FOR GIRL.

THREE EVENTS SCHEDULED

High Dive Was Last, but Unlucky Fall of One Contestant Nearly Caused Tragedy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 26.—A spirited contest for the hand of Miss Lulie Bach, who is known as the belle of Germantown, was settled this afternoon in a novel manner.

Miss Bach had two suitors. John Stull, who lives at Brook and Market streets, and Daniel Cokely, boatkeeper for the Louisville Boat Club.

Miss Bach reciprocated the affections of each, it is said, dividing her attentions as impartially as possible. Both were pressing for a decision, but she could not make up her mind. Finally she told her suitors that they must settle it for themselves.

Cokely suggested an aquatic contest. Stull agreed.

Three event were decided upon. One was to be a swim under the water, the heat to go to the one swimming farthest. The second was to be a hundred-yard swim. The third was to be a high dive from the top of the boat clubhouse.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock was the time set for the contest. Miss Bach was on hand with a number of friends. Capt. William Devan of the life-saving station, agreed to act as referee. The contest was noised about the river front and attracted a crowd that cheered the contestants vigorously. Cokely won the first heat. The second was won by Stull.

Then came the dive. Cokely thought the girl would be his bride, for he had been diving from the clubhouse for several years. He turned to kiss his hand to her, and as he did so he lost his balance and fell into the water.

Stull was compelled to dive after him, and rescued him with little difficulty. Stull was declared the winner and Miss Bach agreed.

The wedding day was set for Aug. 12, and all who witnessed the contest were invited.

HOPKINS FUNERAL TUESDAY

French Baroness Who Was Killed by a Car Will Be Buried in Bellefontaine.

The funeral of Mrs. Marie Antoinette Hopkins, the French baroness who was killed Sunday evening by an Olive street car, will take place Tuesday afternoon from the family residence to St. George's Church at 2 o'clock. The interment will be at Bellefontaine.

The evening of the accident Mrs. Hopkins and a friend were returning from attending a sermon by Dr. Niccolls.

Mrs. Hopkins was 63 years old. She was the daughter of Marquis de St. Croix, and was born a marchioness in her own right. By her marriage in 1860 to Baron Von Renthel she became a baroness.

At one time in her life she was superintendent of schools in the Argentine Republic. In 1890 she was married to Edward A. Hopkins, ambassador of the United States. He died several years ago, after losing his large fortune. After his death Mrs. Hopkins came to St. Louis, where she taught in a private school. Five children survive her. None of them except the youngest, Constantine L. Von Renthel, is in St. Louis. Two are in Europe and two in South America.

CAR STRUCK AN ICE WAGON.

Collision of Suburban Line Car Frightened Morning Passengers.

An east bound Suburban car and an ice wagon collided at Twenty-first and Wash streets at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, and the ice wagon and team came to grief.

Car No. 652, in charge of Motorman Tim Collins, was speeding rapidly down town. The car was crowded with passengers going to work. James L. Vaughan of 1121 North Twenty-first street, was driving a two-horse ice wagon. The wagon was being driven across the track, and Collins thought it would clear the track before he reached it.

The ice wagon was proverbially slow, and the speed of the car was exceedingly fast. The track was slick from the rains, and when Collins saw that an accident was inevitable he could not reduce the speed.

The crash came, and great it was. The passengers, many of whom were women, were frightened, and many made a dash for the door.

The ice wagon was wrecked and one of the horses was so badly injured that a policeman was called to kill it.

The wagon was damaged $250 and the horse was valued at $125. The car was slightly damaged.

POCKET WAS AMPUTATED.

Thieves Performed Operation on a Physician's Coat.

Dr. A. A. Allison of Decatur, Ill., was a victim of St. Louis pickpockets Monday night.

The doctor had gone on an excursion on the City of Providence, it was 11 o'clock Monday night when the boat landed. In leaving the boat there was a crush and the doctor was jostled by a crowd of young men. When he got out of the crowd he observed that his coat pocket had been cut out, and that his pocketbook had been removed. The purse contained $14 in paper money. Dr. Allison reported the theft to the police, but said that he could not give a description of the men.

Rheumatism

The liniment bottle and flannel strip are familiar objects in nearly every household. They are the weapons that have been used for generations to fight old Rheumatism, and are about as effective in the battle with this giant disease as the blunderbuss of our forefathers would be in modern warfare.

Rheumatism is caused by an acid, sour condition of the blood. It is filled with acrid, irritating matter that settles in the joints, muscles and nerves, and liniments and oils nor nothing else applied externally can dislodge these gritty, corroding particles. They were deposited there by the blood and can be reached only through the blood. Rubbing with liniments sometimes relieve temporarily the aches and pains, but these are only symptoms which are liable to return with every change of the weather; the real disease lies deeper, the blood and system are infected. Rheumatism cannot be radically and permanently cured until the blood has been purified, and no remedy does this so thoroughly and promptly as S. S. S. It neutralizes the acids and sends a stream of rich, strong blood to the affected parts, which dissolves and washes out all foreign materials, and the sufferer obtains happy relief from the torturing pains.

SSS

S. S. S. contains no potash or other mineral, but is a perfect vegetable blood purifier and most exhilarating tonic. Our physicians will advise, without charge, all who write about their case, and we will send free our special book on Rheumatism and its treatment.

WAS BOY SLAIN BY EMPLOYER?

Posse Searches Forest for Lad's Body.

ACCUSED MAN ARRESTED

TRAVELING HORSE TRADER SAYS HE IS INNOCENT.

Youth, Who Camped Near, Says He Went Away With Bag After Whipping the Lad and Soon Returned Without Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DE SOTO, Mo., Aug. 26.—The posse that is searching the woods near this place for the body of a 17-year-old boy known as George has not yet found any trace of it.

It is searching every nook of the forest where he disappeared and in which many believe he was murdered.

Charles Fulkerson is in jail here, charged with murdering the boy. He is a traveling horse trader who was camping in the woods where the search is being made at the time the boy disappeared.

James Harrington and his 14-year-old son, Harry, also horse traders, who have a tent near Fulkerson's and who were arrested with him as accessories, have been released after impounding all their horses as security.

The theory is that the boy was murdered and his body hidden under a rock.

If the body is found and the murder theory established the jail guard will be strengthened to prevent the execution of threats of mob violence against Fulkerson.

The boy's family name is not known. Fulkerson says he employed the boy three months ago at Kennett, Mo., and since then he had been traveling with him in their covered wagon. Fulkerson and Harrington are not partners, but met on the road near here a few days ago and have been camping about 50 yards apart.

The boy has been missing since Thursday night. The story told by Harrington's son is that the boy had not received his wages for some time, and he asked Harrington if he could not take one of Fulkerson's horses for the debt. When Fulkerson heard of the inquiry, it is said, he became angry.

That night Harrington was aroused by Fulkerson beating the boy with a whip. He protested, and Fulkerson told him to mind his own business if he did not care to get into trouble himself.

Harrington says Fulkerson then put the boy on his horse behind him and rode away up the Valley Mines road, first taking the boy's knife away from him, saying:

"I will not give you a chance to cut me."

That is the last known of the boy. Fulkerson returned an hour and a half later.

When the neighbors learned of the disappearance, excitement ran high and threats of violence were made.

Fulkerson absolutely denies that he killed the boy, as do also Harrington and his son.

WIFE DANCED ON SUNDAY.

This, With Other Habits, Named as Ground for Divorce.

Alexander Parquette sued for divorce from Emma Parquette Tuesday morning. He alleges that on Nov. 30, 1899, she left him and went to Omaha, Neb., remaining away against his protests for a whole year; that she has often remained away from home until late hours of the night and would never explain her absence when she returned, and that she frequented dances on Sunday nights.

He says they separated on Aug. 10 and names a co-respondent. He asks for the custody of their one child. The couple were married June 20, 1887.

MAN CLAIMED NEGRO BLOOD.

John Schrump and Ida Wilson, both of St. Louis, applied to Deputy County Clerk George Caughian at East St. Louis Tuesday morning for a marriage license. The woman was very black and the man was very white. He said that he had some negro blood in his veins, but the clerk had doubts and refused to issue the license to them. They said they would go to Belleville and try to get a license there.

PRESIDENT OFF FOR THE EAST

ROOSEVELT LEAVES MASSACHUSETTS FOR MAINE.

WARMLY GREETED BY ALL

Spoke of the Navy and Its Needs to the People at Secretary Moody's Home.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 26.—For 25 minutes today this city entertained the President of the United States and then watched him depart for New Hampshire and Maine, giving him a hearty cheer as the train pulled out. The President left Boston at 8:35 o'clock. On the run to this place the towns of West Medford, Winchester and North Billerica turned out immense crowds and gave loud cheers as the train passed. At each place the President appeared on the platform and acknowledged the greetings.

The special train arrived here at 9:19 a. m. and its arrival was signaled by the firing of a presidential salute by the militia, and the G. A. R. performed guard duty. The sidewalks about the station were thronged with people, and the common, which was the scene of the real reception, was black with humanity. Acting Mayor Badger and a committee of the city government met the President and party at the station and were presented by Charles M. Allen, former governor of the state. After a few words of welcome the party took carriages and drove rapidly to the common through streets arched with bunting and lined with cheering people.

Arriving at the speaker's stand the President was presented to the people in a sentence by the acting mayor.

At Haverhill the President said:

"Naturally, at the home of Secretary Moody I should like to say a word or two about the navy. You see that when one Massachusetts man would leave the navy department I had to find another Massachusetts man to take his place. I think that whenever we touch on the navy we are sure of a hearty response from any American audience. We are just as sure of such a response out of the mountains and great plains of the West as upon the Atlantic or Pacific seaboards.

"The entire country is vitally interested in the navy, because an efficient navy of an adequate size is not only the best guarantee of peace, but it is also the surest means for seeing that if war does come the result shall be honorable to our good name and favorable to our national interests. Any really great nation must be peculiarly sensitive to two things—stain on the national honor at home and disgrace to the national arms abroad. Our honor at home, our honor in domestic and internal affairs is at all times in our own keeping, and depends simply upon the national possession of an awakened public conscience. But the only way to make our honor as affected, not by our own deeds, but by the deeds of others, is by readiness in advance."

MUST CHANGE AT TRANSFER POINT

RULES OF TRANSIT CO. EXPLAINED BY SUPT. GRANT.

In the case of John A. Pohlman, charged with disturbing the peace of W. J. Baker, a St. Louis Transit Co. conductor, Judge Sidener discharged the defendant because Baker admitted that there had been no violence offered him.

Pohlman had boardd a Cherokee car one block from an intersecting point on the railway line and presented a transfer in payment for his fare, which Conductor Baker refused to accept. Pohlman refused to pay another fare and Baker had him arrested.

General Superintendent John Grant declares that transfers can only be accepted by conductors when presented at point of transfer punched thereon, and boarding a car one block, more or less, away from a transfer point invalidates the transfer. Baker said he was simply obeying instructions in refusing to accept the ticket offered by Pohlman.

RUNAWAY WRECK IN VANDEVENTER PL.

TEAM SMASHED THROUGH BOTH GATES.

HAD RUN TWENTY-ONE BLOCKS.

Driver of the Turnout, Tom Allen, Leaped for His Life.

Residents of Vandeventer place were aroused about 1:30 o'clock Tuesday morning by the clater of a runaway team that dashed through the exclusive residence section from Grand avenue to Vandeventer avenues, smashing gates and lampposts en route.

The team consisted of Hi-Knocker and Hi-Collar, owned by the Keyes-Marshall Livery Co. The team was attached to a carriage standing at Twentyfirst and Washington avenue when a storm arose.

A flash of lightning frightened the horses and they dashed madly west on Washington avenue. The driver, Tom Allen, was within the carriage closing the windows.

He found it impossible to climb to his seat owing to the horses' speed and he jumped for his life. He rolled over several times after striking the ground but was no hurt.

The horses knew their way home and, without interference, raced wildly west on Washington to Grand avenue, where they turned north.

At the entrance to Vandeventer place they swerved to the west, but the gates were closed. Th horss dashed against them with such force that they opened and the animals continued their mad journey down the north side of the place.

The crashed into several lamposts, wrecking them and extinguishing the lights.

At Vandeventer avenue they stopped, exhausted. Policeman Ford cut their harness from them. The carriage was wrecked. Hi-collar was taken back to his stable, but Hi-knocker could not be moved. He was so badly injured that he was shot Tuesday morning.

THROWN FROM BED BY LIGHTNING

Lightning struck the houe of Paul F Vogel of 1732 North Eleventh street about 3:15 Tuesday morning. The shock threw Mr. and Mrs. Vogel from their bed and frightened Mrs. Kroeger and her four children who live in the basement of the house. It tore a hole in the roof and passed down some pipes into the kitchen where it broke the range into bits and tore up the oilcloth.

The stove in the basement was also broken up. The walls and flooring were torn into splinters.

Workhouse Inmate Sued.

Lizzie Rauch filed a petition for divorce from August Rauch Monday afternoon. They were married Oct. 27, 1885, and she alleges that for three years he was continuously drunk and abusive. Once he struck her with his fist, she says, and on another occasion assaulted her with a frying pan because she refused to give him money with which to buy liquor.

He is now in the workhouse, where, she alleges, he was sent for 30 days for the last offense. She left him on Nov. 23, 1901. She asks for the custody of their two children.

BRAKE ORDINANCE NOT YET EFFECTIVE

IT WILL BE IN FORCE SEPT. 29.

BOARD CANNOT PROSECUTE

President Phillips Says If Transit Company Becomes Amenable to Prosecution Law Department Must Act.

President Phillips of the Board of Public Improvements Tuesday morning stated his position on the power-brake controversy to the Post-Dispatch as follows:

"On July 29 the board approved the designs of four power-brakes for St. Louis street cars. The ordinance compelling street cars to be fitted with power brakes provides that it shall not be effective until 60 days after the board approves the designs.

"Therefore the ordinance is not effective until Sept. 29.

"The board has done its duty in the matter, and it will be up to the legal authorities of the city to institute the necessary prosecutions if, on and after Sept. 29, the street car companies fail to equip their cars with a power brake which the board has approved.

"I understand the transit company is now experimenting with cheaper brakes than those approved by the board. Even if they are, the board can do nothing in the matter.

Four Styles Are Now Approved.

"If they should submit them to the board and ask us to pass on them we could not do so. But we have already approved four styles of power brakes.

"If the transit company should use one of the cheaper styles of power brakes, one of those not approved by the board, after September 29, it would be amenable to the ordinance. But it is not for the Board of Public Improvements to institute legal proceedings for ordinance violations.

"We did what we could to get the street railway companies to comply with the provisions of the ordinance. We asked them to submit designs of power brakes, but they failed to do so. Then we were compelled to investigate the subject for ourselves and recommended such brakes as appeared to us most effective."

Greatest European Authority on Skin Diseases Says It's a Germ.

The old idea that dandruff is scales of skin thrown off, through a feverish condition of the scalp, is exploded. Prof. Unna, Hamburg, Germany, European authority on skin diseases, says dandruff is a germ disease. The germ burrows under the scalp, throwing up little scales of cuticle, and sapping the vitality of the hair at the root. The only hair preparation that kills dandruff germs is Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Not only cures dandruff, but stops falling hair and causes a luxuriant growth. Delightful hair dressing. Send 10c in stamps for sample. ## CHURCHWOMEN IN BATTLE.

Their Disagreement Was Domestic, Not Religious.

The church people and other residents of Granite City are busy gossiping about a fight in which two prominent churchwomen engaged last Saturday and for which one was fined $3 yesterday by Magistrate Tinker.

The women are Mrs. Eliza Townsend, a leading member of the Methodist Church, and Mrs. George Bradweizer of the Baptist Church. They are neighbors and are said to have quarreled because one of them placed a spade on the other's lot. At any rate, Mrs. Townsend was charged with striking Mrs. Bradweizer on the head with a spade. She pleaded guilty.

If we could bring our prosperity up to anthracite prices there would be little grumbling over the coal strike.

Buying in the St. Louis market has increased the prosperity of a wide region. The fall rush to it is not surprising.

J. P. M. will doubtless take charge of Cuba and the Philippines as soon as the Moros are subdued and the Cubans annexed.

The sale of residence property at $300 a foot in St. Louis, a city that can go on spreading until it reaches Kansas, and in which there is so much choice residence property, is a notable event.

The suppression of Commissioner Wright's report on the anthracite strike is unaccountable. Surely President Roosevelt's boom is too strong to be affected by official reports.

ENFORCE THE BRAKE LAW.

The attention of the St. Louis street railway managers is called to the article in the Sunday Post-Dispatch telling of the intention of the East St Louis & Suburban Electric Railway Co. to equip all its cars with a magnetic brake that will stop a car going at 30 miles an hour within a distance of 100 feet.

It is not the intention of the Post-Dispatch to suggest any special form of brake for the street cars in St. Louis. But Transit Company officials have stated that they were ignorant of a really effective brake. They were presumably enlightened by the Board of Public Improvements, which specified and authorized four different designs. The company appears to have ignored this specification and authorization, which was according to law, and is engaged in experiments with cheap brakes of its own choosing.

If the Transit Company is still in ignorance of an effective brake, it may be interested in the statement of Superintendent Bramlette of the East St. Louis & Suburban Co., who says that he saw a test of the magnetic brake that he is about to place on his cars. A Pittsburg car, weighing 40,000 pounds, more than any car in use in St. Louis weighs, going at the rate of 30 miles an hour, was stopped easily within a hundred feet.

The people of St. Louis know that effective brakes are in use elsewhere. They are aware that the law calling upon the street railway companies to equip the cars with effective brakes went into effect exactly five months ago. They look to see it enforced.

The St. Louis musicians who are donating their services and giving free concerts in the playgrounds of the Civic Improvement League are doing good public work. With such concerts the free playgrounds must be a great success. Work of this character benefits the city and every one of its citizens. It helps to build up a high grade of citizenship. It will pay, in every sense of the word.

GOING TO LUNNON.

It is reported that another member of our "aristocracy" is planning to dispose of his property in this country and acquire "estates" in England, which he is reported to have said is "the only fit place for a gentleman to live in."

As Marse Henry Watterson pointed out in an editorial reprinted in the Sunday Post-Dispatch, "the Four Hundred continue to keep themselves constantly before the public, yet somehow it is their scandals, not their benefactions, that advertise."

There have been two scandals in one of these families within a month. A few weeks ago a domestic difficulty was made public by a midnight shooting scrap between the husband and the other man. Divorces and trading of wives are so frequent that ladies have to be very careful in making up their dinner parties. A man who was trying to butt into this curious "society" committed suicide the other day, and the members of the Four Hundred gravely surmise that he was probably insane, because he had been seen walking down the street, not on the side traveled by "society." That a sane man could have done such a thing is beyond the power of "society's" conceiving.

The man who is disgusted with America should by all means go to England if he finds there a more congenial home.

But it is strongly doubted whether the English are any fonder than Americans of the sort of people who dub themselves "society." Will the English welcome monkeys to dinner? Will they like baby parties? Will they tolerate the curious creatures who indulge a taste for such things?

Hardly.

Contestants for the Post-Dispatch drawing prizes sent in samples of their work from Louisiana and South Carolina. The contest interested youthful readers far and near. In order to give the younger contestants a better chance, the age limit has now been reduced to sixteen years. Four more prizes of five dollars each may be won. Any child under 16, who can draw faces, has an opportunity to compete and win a prize.

RIVER BOAT LINE.

The need of river transportation is again plainly stated in the Sunday Post-Dispatch by Mr. J. W. Pittman of Lake Providence, La.

"Ten or fifteen years ago," said Mr. Pittman, "St. Louis received 80 per cent of the grocery trade along the river and 60 per cent of the trade in other lines of business. I now figure that this city receives only 15 per cent of the former and 40 per cent of the latter, and is losing every year.

Other merchants of that section, in response to letters of inquiry, express heartiest approbation of the packet line. One is quoted as follows:

"Merchants generally prefer receiving their goods by boat on account of damages being much more easily and more promptly adjusted. It would, moreover, have a tendency toward the regulation of freight rates as charged by railroads, and we have no doubt it would to a certain extent induce merchants to purchase their goods in St. Louis, in view of the fact that the only obstacle now is poor transportation accommodations."

All interests unite to testify to the need of river transport. It cannot be that the project will not be realized in view of the powerful backing promised.

It is astonishing that there should be a growing feeling against Cuba because in their desperation the Cubans are driven to fixing high tariff duties on imports. It is everywhere proclaimed in the United States that a high tariff is necessary to prosperity, yet we become angry when the islanders in their poverty show inclination to accept this teaching.

A COMMON SENSE VIEW.

The warning uttered by Mr. Russell Sage against the abnormal growth of combined capital consolidated into monopoly did not spring from baseless fear.

"Should an era of combinations ensue, the American people will certainly revolt against them and, if they do," says Mr. Sage, "there will be financial ruin such as people have never dreamed of in the history of the world."

Nobody will venture to question Mr. Sage's understanding of economic facts and tendencies. What he says is not prophetic, but admonitory, since, probably, no one would more quickly repudiate a suggestion that the American people are not equal to all the dangers they are likely to encounter.

Mr. Sage's warning, coming as an answer to Mr. Morgan's announcement that the growth of trusts has only just begun, shows that the issue is being sharply defined in the minds of those closest to the springs of things.

"Combinations of all great industries are a menace to the gov- ment," says Mr. Sage.

n the question must be speedily considered: How can they rolled?

sm is cowardice. There is no reason to fear disaster, because the American people are too intelligent to allow themselves to be dragged into a condition in which ruin is the essential feature, and they are too wideawake to drift into it.

Mr. Sage's is the common sense view of the prudent man and should be welcome as a hint from "the inside."

The Transmississippi Commercial Congress urges the President to use all his power to destroy the growing power and influence of the trusts, and it asks Congress to pass more stringent and efficient anti-trust laws if present laws are not sufficient. The coal and meat trusts have given the country some new ideas as to what may be done by combinations in restraint of trade.

HOW THEY EQUALIZE.

The State Board of Equalization pandered to virtue in adding $8,254,234 to the valuation of public service corporations in the assessment for 1902.

The Transit Company is raised $500,000, which is, perhaps, 5 per cent of what the increase ought to be. Virtue is recognized but not accepted.

Just why the Board should have conceded this recognition is not clear. It wasn't necessary, and it will merely provoke ill-natured comment from friends and adversaries of honest taxation.

The law distinctly says that franchises and all other property shall be assessed at full value. As long as the board is determined not to obey the law, why nibble at observance? Why not smash it frankly, boldly, honestly?

There is just as much sense in lowering the assessment $500,000 as in raising it by that amount. The difference between what the assessment is and what it ought to be, according to law, is so great that a little matter of half a million is of no account.

The board ought to do one thing or the other. Either make the public service corporations pay their dues to the state or let them go without any payment. It is folly to try to tempt public sentiment by such piecemeal concessions to justice.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

SOU. RY.—There is no premium on a half dollar of 1829.

MRS. J. LONG.—There is no premium on a dollar of 1871.

A FRIEND.—"My hair are dirty?" Who says that? "My hair is dirty" is correct.

W. J. F.—The glycerine in nitroglycerine and the glycerine used for toilet purposes is the same.

EAST ST. LOUIS.—Yes, there is a difference in sea level on either side of Isthmus of Panama.

MAZY.—Yes, there are mail carriers in Iowa. There are many postoffices in that state. As many as in Missouri, probably.

STENOGRAPHERS.—No, they are not synonymous. A stenographer is a shorthand writer. A typewriter is one who writes on the machine of that name. You may be a stenographer without being a typewriter. There were stenographers ages before the typewriting machine was invented.

Costly Horse Play.

From the Washington Post.

At Indianapolis an aged man was thrown down and injured by a chance encounter with a friend who had long cultivated the habit of striking his intimate acquaintances, whirling them around and giving them some such hot name as "old sardine." The aged and injured citizen brought suit for damages and was awarded a substantial sum. The defendant appealed. His counsel submitted that he had meant no harm; that he was a friend of the man whom he had injured; that it was his habitual way of treating his friends, and that the bad result was a mere accident for which he ought not to be held pecuniarily responsible. But the court, in reviewing the case, said: "The facts are sufficient to condemn the habit of so-called 'horseplay' between grown men. The defense relied upon has been many times tersely expressed by younger people in the phrase 'I didn't mean to.' Plaintiff was injured through no fault of his own. His right to be secure in person was violated. The appellant was responsible therefor. His act was the primary cause of the plaintiff's injury."

THE NEWEST BOOKS

Books for Boys.

The Century Company will begin this autumn the publication of a new series of books for boys and girls, to be called "The St. Nicholas Series," made up of long stories which have appeared in St. Nicholas magazine. That periodical began this past year to dispense with serials, and instead has given a long complete story in each number. The new series will include "Sir Marrok," by Allen French; "The Cruise of the Dazzler," by Jack London; "The Boy and the Baron," by Adeline Knapp; "The Boys of the Rincon Ranch," by H. S. Canfield, and "Tommy Remington's Battle," by Burton E. Stevenson, all richly illustrated and issued in uniform and attractive binding at a popular price.

Owen Wister's novel, "The Virginian; a Horseman of the Plains," has run into its fiftieth thousand within six weeks of its publication. In the literary magazines and weekly reports it stands at the head of all the hits of the popular books of the day.

Sarah Grand's New Work.

"The Russells in Chicago" is a cleverly written narrative of the experiences of a young couple from the East who came west and made their home in Chicago. The story is of much interest in that it shows how soon the average human can become accustomed to the existing order of things, and finally want just the opposite of what was formerly desired. At the start of the story the Russells were incredulous, then sarcastic, later on tolerant and finally Mrs. Russell, "throwing a kiss out toward the city, said: 'Dear, dirty, beautiful Chicago, splendid in your youthful strength, I love you, and this is home forever.'" L. C. Page & Co., Boston.

A Unique Book on Wild Flowers.

Recent books on wild flowers are many in number; some are distinguished for their technical accuracy, some for their explicit descriptions and some for their excellent colored plates. One of the most popular writers on this subject, as well as one of the most accurate, is F. Schuyler Mathews, author of "Familiar Flowers of Field and Garden," "Familiar Trees and Their Leaves," etc.

It has been the desire of the Messrs. Putnam to publish a book on wild flowers that would combine technical accuracy with popular convenience and at the same time contain the best illustrations that could be secured. One other characteristic was desired: Compactness of size, so that the book could be carried to the wild flowers in their native haunts—a unique convenience that does away with "portable herbariums," pressed specimens and the like, and makes a walk through the woods and fields doubly delightful. Mr. Mathews, botanist and artist in one, entered into these plans with enthusiasm more than a year ago.

"The Field Book of American Wild Flowers," by F. S. Mathews, is now ready from the press. It is of pocket size, and yet it contains descriptions of 850 flowers, with drawings of 350, many of these in color. A short description of the character and habits of each flower is given, together with a concise definition of its colors, and a reference to the insects which assist in its fertilization.

The author says of his book, "It originated in the fields, and it is intended to go back there in the hand of its good reader."

Books on Venice.

The noise of the fall of the Campanile was heard around the globe, and it has served to emphasize the probability that time and crumbling foundations must wipe out historic Venice.

And it also recalls the fact that good books dealing with the "Bride of the Sea" are none too plentiful.

Ruskin and Trollope, it is true, have reared lasting monuments to the beauty that is Venetian. W. D. Howells' "Venetian Days" and Horatio F. Brown's short history of the city are also well known. But of modern works there is little else notable, except, perhaps, Mrs. Turnbull's charming romance of the sixteenth century, well named "The Golden Book of Venice." Harriet Prescott Spofford found it "one of the richest, sweetest, most powerful books ever written"; and Hamilton W. Mabie wrote of it that he knew of no other book so full of the atmosphere of Italy. In color and vitality it is indeed a remarkable book. And then it presents a story of deep human interest.

Queer Title for Conan Doyle.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, author of "Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (Harpers), told an amusing incident the other day at a dinner of the Authors' Club in London. It seems that the first intimation of the news of his knighthood came to him in a bill from his gunsmith, which a clerk of the latter had addressed "Sir Sherlock Holmes." The gunsmith's clerk a worthy and credulous man, had no idea of perpetrating a joke, but had written the superscription in sober earnest, having heard that men who are knighted adopt a new name with the title, and that Dr. Conan Doyle would naturally take the name of his famous detective.

There is an old bit of doggerel which has been floating around the country a good many years. It concerns Aaron Burr. Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, who is trying to fight Alexander Hamilton's ante-mortem duel for him, recently sent it to a New York paper and it was published.

It goes like this:

"Oh! Aaron Burr what have you done?
You've gone and killed great Hamilton.
You stood behind a great tall thistle—
And shot him with a big 'hoss' pistol!"

Charles Felton Pidgin, who is ever ready to parry a thrust at Burr and is said to make some very sharp thrusts at Alexander Hamilton in his forthcoming romance of the Utopian Republic as ruled by President-General Aaron Burr, entitled "The Climax; or What Might Have Been," returns the Atherton attack with this jovial verse:

"Oh! Gertrude Atherton what have you done?
You've killed our great George Washington!
You did not use a sword or gun,
But crushed him 'neath a Ham-il-ton!"

"Friars and Filipinos."

The complexity of the Philippine situation and the great problem before our government are brought out clearly in "Friars and Filipinos," an abridged translation of Dr. Jose Rizal's great Tagalog novel, "Noli me Tangere," published by Lewis, Scribner & Co. of New York. Dr. Rizal, the greatest of Filipino martyrs, came to his own untimely and dramatic end by writing this book and exciting the wrath of the friars. His work explains how Spain failed in its government of the island, and also graphically and accurately describes the life of the Filipino and the scenes in the Philippines. It is the most notable writing a native of the islands has ever produced.

"Michael Carmichael," by Miles Sandys, is a story of love and mystery. The plot has to do with an attempt to swindle an insurance company by means of a bogus corpse. Every great crime that has taken place in the middle West in the last decade has its counterpart in some stage of the story. The book is of a general saffron hue, and scarcely points a moral, although it may have been intended to do so. Laird & Lee, Chicago.

PRIZES FOR YOUNG ARTISTS.

COMPLETE THIS HEAD AND WIN $5.

Above is the outline of an old man's head, all but the face. Five dollars will be awarded to the artist, under sixteen years of age, who sends in the funniest and most laughable face of an old man, thus completing the picture.

NOTE THESE INSTRUCTIONS AND FOLLOW CAREFULLY:

The faces must be drawn with a pen and good black ink.

Make as few lines as possible to get the effect.

By cutting away the paper where the profile should be, the head can be mounted on cardboard or some smooth paper, thus getting a better surface to work upon before beginning the drawing.

Only draw in the part that is omitted in the picture. Use the picture cut from the Post-Dispatch as a basis and complete it.

Contestants must not be over sixteen years of age.

No drawings made with blue or red ink will be accepted.

Send drawings, with name, address and age, to Editor Art Contest, Post-Dispatch.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

This column is open to everybody who has a complaint to make, information to give or a subject of general interest to discuss. Letters from persons seeking employment cannot be given place in this column. All letters must be accompanied by address and signature.

To Prevent Suicide by Carbolic Acid.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Owing to the largely increasing number of suicides by carbolic acid, we would suggest that you agitate that the Retail Druggists' Association of St. Louis take up the matter, and have the members only sell carbolic acid on a physician's prescription. This could readily be done, as all pharmacists are members of the association. As druggists we are willing to be the first to live up to the above suggestions.

St. Louis' Grand-Jury.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Governments of themselves are worthless and of no value. They are not sacred, there is nothing sacred about them (excepting the sacredness of the ex-parte proceedings of an honest and fearless grandjury). God bless the grandjury system and may he keep it sacred. It is the only system by which men of high and low degree can be brought before the bar of justice. The true end and aim of government is the preservation of individual liberty. Every safeguard is thrown about the citizens in the protection of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. The people are the sovereign power and not the officeholders. The St. Louis "boodlers" have discovered this significant truth. The grandjury system in St. Louis has become an important factor in the body politic.

Better Street Car Service Needed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

We that have to ride on the Taylor avenue cars want better accommodations. Only a part of us now ride at all, for when the cars are running at night they are so crowded some of us do not get to ride. But this is not the worst part of it, for I understand by a late time table that as soon as the Highlands closes at night, the cars are all turned in the sheds, and that is the reason we that live south of Delmar avenue have to walk if we don't catch the last car ten or fifteen minutes before 12 o'clock. Are these accommodations for a World's Fair city?

St. Louis. A RESIDENT.

Gate Tickets at Union Station.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The present method of passing the traveling public through the gates at the Union Station is anything but up to date. Besides it subjects the traveler to a good deal of inconvenience and unnecessary annoyance. You have but to stand beside one of those gates any evening and watch the way they are passed in and you will fully agree with me that there is room for improvement. This being the case under normal conditions what will it be when we have a world's fair here?

It is a well-known fact that all travelers are in a hurry to make their train. You can now imagine him rushing to the window; he buys his ticket and puts it away carefully in his pocketbook, and having heard a good deal of pickpockets, purse-snatchers and satchel grabbers in connection with our Union Station he places it away in an inside pocket, where it will be secure. He then picks up his satchels, which, with his coat and umbrella, make a very good load, and starts for the train. He gets to the gate, he finds 40 people ahead of him and each one has to show his ticket. When this poor traveling man's turn comes he has to drop his satchels, coat and umbrella, dive down in his inside pocket, get out his pocketbook, hands his ticket to the gatekeeper, who examines it, finds it all right, punches it, and hands it back to the traveling man, who again places it away carefully. He again picks up his traps and starts for his train, in anything but a pleasant mood. His temper is not improved any on reaching the car steps to find that he has to go through the same routine. Now you can imagine what a time a poor woman with five or six children and as many bundles would have in reaching her train.

This system you must admit is slow, tedious, annoying and unnecessary. I say unnecessary, because it can be avoided, by adopting the following plan: Let each road have printed 1000 tickets, size 1½x3 inches, to read at top, gate ticket and under that have the initials of the road. Thus, gate ticket, Van. for Vandalia, C. & A. for Chicago & Alton, B. & O., Big Four and so on ad libitum. When the traveler buys his ticket the ticket seller hands him one of those gate tickets. He puts his train ticket away in his pocketbook and places the same where it will be secure; he keeps the gate ticket in his hand and when he gets to the gate he will have no trouble in handing it to the gatekeeper, though he is loaded down with baggage or bundles. And without an instant delay.

In that way that unpleasant stoppage at the gate is avoided and I feel safe in saying that you can pass in 1000 in the same time that you now pass 100 people. This one feature alone would be a great improvement. As soon as possible after the trains pulled out the gatekeepers could return the tickets to the ticket sellers and in that way they could be used over and over for several years. The tickets should read the same on both sides. The cost would not exceed $3, and if the tickets are made of good material they will last three years. It is not absolutely necessary for the traveler to show his ticket at the car steps. All that is necessary is for him to tell the gentleman in charge that he is going to Sedalia or to Joliet as the case may be, he having been admitted through the proper gates to those respective roads.

Sunday Closing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

To the public and the retail merchants of the city of St. Louis: Now is the time to urge the Sunday closing movement of all retail grocers and meat markets in the city.

But to do this we must get the co-operation of the labor unions, and the laboring class in general.

Now, there is no excuse for people in cool weather for not buying on Saturday just as well as on Sunday morning.

Give the clerks a day of rest each week, which they deserve just as well as you do. Consider yourself in the clerk's place and think it over. Would you not like to have a day of rest each week? You surely would. Let us hear from others on this subject.

THIS ST. LOUIS GIRL A BRIDEMAID

GOOD VAUDEVILLE AT COLUMBIA

MISS JEANETTE LEWIS.

She will be one of the bridemaids in "The Belle of New York," to be seen at the Grand next month. She is a native of St. Louis and resides here with her mother at 2936 Lucas avenue.

Dramatically speaking, by far the best number in the Columbia program this week is the work of Miss Earle Remington of the team of Hines and Remington. She is one of the most unique entertainers on the vaudeville stage and her impersonations and mimicry are most wonderful. In her general make-up she is inclined to the grotesque, but her art is so pronounced that one forgets her personal appearance.

As an entertainment feature, however, the audiences yestrday were inclind to award the palm to the Lowe-Hughes trio of musicians. They furnish excellent music on a variety of instruments, while their playing on three xylophones surpasses anything of the kind heard in St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes are new to the stage, but they have the ability to entertain and Mrs. Hughes is certainly one of the most beautiful women ever seen at the Columbia.

The Four Madcaps, English girls in a musical acrobatic stunt, were disappointing; not because they are not fair to look upon and do a fairly good turn, but much more had been expected of them, because of the featuring they have received. They are not up to some of our American girl specialties.

Others who entertained were Foy and Clark in their grotesque sketch, "The Spring of Youth;" Cole and De Losse on the slack wire; Alburtus and Millak, club swingers; Irving Jones, negro singer; Dave Nowlin in a monologue, Little Shore Acres and Artie St. Clair, juvenile comedy act, and the Shaws.

N. B. Patton, who is delighting large audiences at Havlin's this week with his quaint comedy in "The Minister's Son," broke into the theatrical profession under circumstances that would have effectually put a quietus on anyone who was not actually destined to achieve success and stellar honors.

Mr. Patton's father was a minister in Rochester, N. Y., and, like most gentlemen of the cloth in his particular branch of the church, he had abhorence of the stage. Young Patton was an only son, and it was his father's wish that he, like his father and his father before him, follow the traditions of the family and become a minister.

Young Patton's ministerial education was well under way, and he had never gazed across the footlights.

One summer young Patton went to a neighboring city to pass his vacation with an uncle. Buffalo Bill's aggregation visited that city and after perusing all of Nat Salsbury's glowing and patriotic literature, neither young Patton nor his uncle could see the slightest reason why he should remain away. It was decided to go. The exhibition delighted him at every turn. The show so pleased the young man that when the gentlemanly agent passed through the audience selling tickets for the concert the minister's son never thought of not staying.

He paid the price and saw the show. The concert was the less enjoyable part of the big show, but the glamor of the whole so worked on the young man that he determined to be a part of it. He dreamed that night of the applause that greeted him as he dashed up before the grand stand on his charger.

Patton left his uncle's roof and it was supposed that he had gone home. It was some time before it was known that he had "run away." He sang in the concert, but he wanted to ride the horses, and finally he was permitted. One day he tried a horse that was noted for its viciousness, but Patton was ambitious. He mounted the animal and it dashed away with him. His foot was caught in the stirrup and try as he might he could not extricate it. The animal reared, plunged and ran like the infuriated steed he was. The thousands in the grandstand knew that a life was in peril. Cowboys tried for a rescue, and they tried to act as though the incident were a part of the program to quiet the fears of the audience.

Mr. Cody himself joined in the chase and it was he who finally dragged young Patton from beneath the prostrate horse, where he had been thrown by the lariats. Unconscious and almost dead, the young man was carried away. A surgeon was called and it was discovered that a leg was broken, and several ribs, not to mention bruises, contusions and internal injuries. He was taken to his own home, where he was speedily forgiven. When he regained his health and strength all desire to shine as a wild west hero were dissipated, but the desire for a quiet clergyman's life was gone and he finally drifted into the theatrical business and after achieving some fame and fortune he clinched both by writing the play in which he now stars.

In John Drew's play, "The Mummy and the Humming Bird," which opens the Empire Theater's season Thursday, Sept. 4, there is an odd character, an Italian organ grinder. He has come to London to seek revenge on a man who has robbed him of his wife. One cold winter night he is nearly frozen. The scientist who is the chief figure in the play and who is impersonated by John Drew, takes the Italian to his home and makes him comfortable. He then engaged him as his valet. In that capacity the Italian prevents the elopement of the scientist's wife with the man whom he has pursued from Italy.

Price of Bottles Raised.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Prices of bottles will be raised from 10 to 15 cents a gross. This statement was made last night by L. L. Turner, president of the Western Green Glass Bottle Association, which has been in session in Chicago, and which authorized the advance. He said the cause of the raise was the increased cost of production, due to the advance in the price of both labor and materials. The association includes 18 of the largest manufacturers of the United States.

CHILD SAW AUNT DRINK FATAL ACID

NO REASON KNOWN FOR MYRTLE BAIRD'S SUICIDE.

NO SICKNESS, NO LOVE AFFAIR.

Young Woman Who Recently Came to St. Louis From Montezuma, Ind., Left Farewell Note to Relatives.

Dear Laura: When you come from downtown I will be gone. I know you have done lots for me, but I have been disappointed many times. I have also done lots for you, which no one else would of done. Tell Walter good-bye for me when you see him. Good-bye, Laura. Try and forget the one who has been so much trouble to you. I have written a letter to ma this morning. I want to be sent to Bloomingdale, Ind. Good-bye, Laura; good-bye, Ed. MYRTLE.

Why Myrtle Baird, aged 18, took her life by swallowing carbolic acid is thus far unknown to her friends. The girl's sister, Mrs. Edward Arnold, at whose home she drank the fatal draught, says that she cannot explain the act.

"My sister was in good health, and had no love affair," said Mrs. Arnold.

"The Walter of whom she wrote is her brother, Walter Baird. "Ed" is my husband, her brother-in-law."

The girl, who recently came to St. Louis from Montezuma, Ind., swallowed the acid in the presence of her nephew, Edward Arnold, aged 5, at the Arnold home, 4333 Kennerly avenue.

The child called a neighbor, who found the girl's dead body. Soon after her sister returned to the house.

ASTRONOMER WRIGHT CHOSEN.

He Will Head the Mills Expedition to Chili.

BERKELEY, Cal., Aug. 26.—Astronomer William H. Wright of the astronomical staff of the Lick Observatory, has been chosen to take charge of the D. O. Mills expedition now being outfitted at Mount Hamilton to spend two years in Chili in making special researches among the stars of the southern hemisphere.

Director W. W Campbell will go with the party to direct personally the erection of the observing station, and the beginning of the two years astronomical campaign. Harold K. Palmer, fellow in the Lick Observatory for the past four years, will be Astronomer Wright's assistant.

THE FIRST STEP

Of the child is an event in the mother's life. How proud she feels when the attempt to walk is begun so early as to evidence childish courage and sturdy strength. Such pride should be enjoyed by every mother. But it often happens that the child is timid, weak and deficient in vitality, and clings to the mother's arms with no desire to walk or play.

Mothers should learn that to have strong children they must themselves be strong, for the child's strength is the gift of the mother.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription by expectant mothers gives them health and strength to give their children. It nourishes the nerves, strengthens the body and gives great muscular strength and elasticity, so that the baby's advent is practically painless.

"I have been using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and can say it is just what you advertise it to be, and can cheerfully recommend it," writes Mrs. Victor J. Hadin, of Leonardville, Riley Co., Kansas. "I began taking it just two months before baby came and was greatly benefited by its use. The doctor who attended me said I did about as well as any one he had seen (as I was sick only about three hours), and also that your 'Favorite Prescription' was 'the one patent medicine' which he did have faith in.

"We now have a darling baby boy, strong and healthy, who weighed nine pounds when born (July 28th). During this month he has gained three and one-half pounds."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book containing 1008 pages, is given away. Send 21 one-cent stamps for expense of mailing only, for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

ZIEGLER STARTS NEW EXPEDITION

It Is Entirely Independent of Baldwin's Venture.

LEADER'S NAME NOT GIVEN OUT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—William Ziegler, the millionaire backer of Explorer Evelyn B. Baldwin, in his dash for the north pole, has announced that he has sent another expedition to operate independently of Baldwin.

He is keeping the name of the leader of this expedition secret. He says, however, that it is headed by a man in whom he has the greatest confidence.

His instructions to it are to reach the north pole at all hazards.

Ziegler admits he has little hope that Baldwin's expedition will succeed and has expressed himself as being dissatisfied with the explorer's vague reports about his efforts to reach the pole.

The new expedition is said to be on board the Frithjof, which is carrying relief to Baldwin at Camp Ziegler.

"Has the return of Baldwin altered your determination to reach the pole? Have you any disposition to throw it up and recall Baldwin?" Mr. Ziegler was asked today.

"Certainly not," he replied. "I will get there if it is possible. Baldwin knows that he need not come back to me until he reaches the pole. I told him so before he went and I think he understands that part of it thoroughly. The truth is that Baldwin is only one string to my bow. On the Frithjof with Champ I sent a fully equipped party, entirely independent of Baldwin. I gave them very explicit instructions. If they did not find Baldwin they were to go forward on their own hook. They are under a competent leader, in whom I have confidence.

"Baldwin is still lying in Norway, and, if I am correctly informed, it is too late in the season for him to reach Franz-Josef Land this fall. He has planned to go back next summer and make his trial in the spring of 1904.

"If everything has gone well with the Frithjof party it is now in Franz-Josef Land. The party will pass the winter there after establishing itself as far north as it can get.

"They will not wait for Baldwin, but will make their expedition independently under the man I have chosen to lead them. If they reach the pole, well and good. The man who gets there is the man who will get the glory.

"Baldwin will receive orders to proceed to Camp Ziegler as soon as he can next summer. He will remain there through the winter and will go north to relieve the other expedition or to find the pole in the spring of 1904. If things turn out that way Baldwin's expedition will, in a sense, be a relief expedition for the one carried up on the Frithjof."

"Who is the leader of the expedition which will go from the Frithjof?"

"I do not care to give his name at the present time. I will only say that he is a perfectly competent man, in whom I have great confidence," replied Mr. Ziegler.

ENGINE PICKED UP VICTIM.

Unconscious Preacher Was Carried 11 Miles on Pilot.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Aug. 26.—Rev. W. R. Osborne of Hackettstown, N. J., while unconscious, was carried 11 miles between Tunnellton and Rowlesburg, W. Va., on the pilot of the engine drawing a Baltimore & Ohio express train. The train stopped at Rowlesburg to coal and there he was found.

Mr. Osborne, who is 70 years old, was bruised about the head, body and legs, but physicians say he will recover. He was struck by the train while crossing the track.

GENERAL SPORTING NEWS

THE HAMMER COLUMN

We desire to offer our sympathy to the poor bookmaker at Kinloch Park. He has our money, and he may as well possess our non-negotiable assets as well. We believe he will need condolences before the week at Kinloch is over.

The occasion of our proffer is the announcement made last night that, beginning today, all races would be started under the no-recall system.

We wish we were a horse owner. We have unintentionally paid for several during our visits to the several race tracks in the vicinity, but have nothing to show for it save an assorted collection of pasteboard which is non-convertible.

If we had a few good selling platers we would go straight away and have our conscience amputated, after which we would repair to Kinloch. We would then demonstrate to the association the variety of possibilities under the recall system, and to the bookmakers, that their percentage is not always a "cinch."

We have no intimate acquaintance with the vast body of persons who own horses. Such as we have had the good fortune to meet, judging from the systematic manner in which they have induced us to bet on the wrong horse, have not sprouted any wings yet. We may reasonably be supposed to be right in thinking that there are one or two who will never grow any.

With our conscience amputated, and our barn protecting a horse or two, it may be reasonably supposed that we would do what they would—form an association for the annihilation of the pencilers.

We might do this in several ways, but the most natural one would be to smoke the pipe of peace with the owners of two or three horses that had a chance in a certain event, and arrange to have the shortest priced animals in the bunch anchored when the barrier goes up. To make matters doubly sure we could crowd two days' food into half a day's space and take off about three seconds of speed.

We would then saunter down into the betting ring and watch the odds on the dead ones get shorter and shorter and the price on the only live one grow fat.

Then, out with the wad, down the line and behind the book waiting for the money—there would be no need to watch the race run. In case of a howl, why, the horses were off bad and could never get up.

Like all good things, it is simple.

As the betting public we are satisfied. We have a large objection to betting on anything that is less than even money, even though our convictions tell us the horse will win. Now we are convinced that these same short horses will not win and can devote ourself to the joyful operation of "piking" with the reasonable hope of some day lighting on the horse which carries the money of the elect.

In anticipation of this event, we therefore offer the bookmakers our sympathy. We expect to yet get that horse we have many times bought and never owned.

THE FALL OF BASEBALL.

We spent an hour or two in the dusty archives which shelter many volumes of past baseball history yesterday. We were profoundly impressed for a moment with the improvement, manual, in the baseball game of the present day over that of a few years since. We had been told by Vater Chris and other archeological deposit dug up from early strata that on the contrary baseball a few years ago was a big margin ahead of the championship baseball of today.

For a few moments we thought we hit upon a contradiction of this and then we happened to think about the accepted method of scoring. We wilted and found that our discovery was nil.

Records in fielding are, next to drawing a salary, the easiest thing to accomplish connected with the business of baseball. We even think we could play baseball if we could have one of Uncle Nick's men to score for us.

The theory appears to be to protect the player and keep him from making an error as long as possible. Occasionally a player breaks loose and does a stunt while the spectators are looking and then a misplay has to be registered. Likewise anything that can be construed into a safe hit is made one. Sometimes the situation is tortured until it nets one.

Assisting ourself in the performance of this duty, we occasionally have ruptured our conscience trying to make Oom Paul Kruger present a clean sheet for the day.

We have come to the conclusion that the real purpose of the official score is to protect the player. If he drops a hot liner we would naturally suppose the player entitled to an error. This is a big mistake—the ball is simply too hot to handle and goes for a hit. Perhaps it might not have been too hot for another player, who would possibly have held it. It would then have been a "phenomenal play."

If a ball goes shooting to right or left and the player lets it get through his hands, while it is natural to suppose the player failed to stop it, this is not so—it was a base hit, only you failed to notice it. It was too far to one side or the other and makes a hit for the batter. Of course it is quite likely that some Wallace or Wagner might have gotten it—but because one man gets it or could get it is no reason why it should be an error for another—such an idea is highly erroneous, but the act is not.

For a long time we labored under the mistaken impression that a player was hired to stop the hard balls. We were deluded into believing that any player would do to stop easy ones. It appears that salaries are paid, however, solely with the idea that players handle the sure things. If they get the others it is so much luck. The luckier you are the higher your salary.

OOM PAUL'S $4000.

We really are depressed over the want of luck our Oom Paul Kruger has. Anything out of the way of his salary always inconveniences him. And yet only recently we learn that Oom Paul is to draw $4000 a season.

We understand the explanation of this lies in the fact that Kruger's luck lies in his batting. Four thousand dollars' worth of luck should be a great deal.

Kruger, it is said, will draw that money by sitting on the bench and batting in pinches. We would sit on a bench ourself for $4000. That is where ourself and Kruger seem to belong, anyway.

BIG FIGHT TO BE UNDER CANVAS

Tim Hurst Completes Arrangements for It in Open Field at Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 26.—The McGovern-Young Corbett fight of Sept. 22 will take place under a great canvas in an open field on Fourth street, Louisville, instead of inside the Southern Athletic Club, as has been supposed.

[illegible] great tent for this purpose will be [illegible]d and seats for 10,000 will be put up. [illegible]s decided on after some telegrams [illegible]een Tim Hurst of Pittsburg and [illegible] of Louisville. [illegible] Gray are equal owners in the [illegible]hletic Club, and some days [illegible] the idea that the Southern [illegible]ll seat only 4000, would be

ONE BASEBALL LEAGUE PLAN FOR THE FUTURE

Official of the St. Louis American Team Says Hostilities Will Surely End Soon---Present System Is Injuring the Game.

"When the cruel war is over, Jennie, dear"—

Baseball magnates are evidently humming this song beneath their breath, in anticipation of the cessation of hostilities between the two major organizations of the country—this notwithstanding the warlike conditions at present prevailing.

An official of the St. Louis American League said today to a Post-Dispatch representative:

"There is no question but that the end of the two leagues will come. I do not expect it this year, but the present hostilities will surely cease next season or in 1904.

"A mutual understanding is bound to come and the St. Louis American League Club will indorse it when it is preposed. The present conditions play into the hands of the players too strongly. Hostility and competition between the two organizations simply serve to enhance prices. Salaries are going up so that neither league can make money. When each finds that the other is prepared to stay in the business, with the realization will come an appreciation of the fact that amity in place of hosility is the better policy.

"The end will see both leagues working in harmony, such as existed in the days of the old National Association. The future will probably see the baseball employers organized as against the baseball players. The question reduces to a plain business proposition as any other matter of making money. In all, combitaion is strength. The baseball magnates will find this out soon.

"There are likely to be many surprises in the baseball world before the season of 1903 opens. It is possible that the two leagues will get together before the start of another season. If so it will be all the better for baseball.

"As it now stands there is no money in baseball. It is a mere question of whether the game will be killed or salaries drop. The latter issue is bound to come."

JESSE BURKETT WILL NOT PLAY ON ST. LOUIS TEAM NEXT SEASON

Confirmation of the story that Burkett would not be with the American League St. Louis team next year was received today.

According to information given to the Post-Dispatch, Jesse Burkett will be no more a player on the St. Louis team.

Burkett, Wallace and Heidrick have received flattering offers from other clubs for their services next season, and all have reported them to the American League management. The latter has met the advances offered Heidrick and Wallace, and, according to the Post-Dispatch informant, these two players will remain with the club next season.

Burkett, however, will get the cold and icy hand. He will be left to accept his "offer" and go elsewhere—the American League management does not want him.

The reason for letting Burkett go is not so much his failure to play the baseball that he did in past years as his conduct on the field.

The American management has never liked his rowdyism, and it is thought best to let him accept any offer made him, as the easiest means of letting him go without hurting his feelings.

WESTERN WOMEN IN GOLF TOURNEY

Sixty-Two Players Are Entered at Onwentsia Club Links.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Play in the qualifying round of the second annual western woman's golf championship, together with that of the seventh annual women's championship of the Onwentsia Club, began under almost perfect conditions today on the links of the Onwentsia Club at Lake Forest. Sixty-two are entered—a record number for the events. Two cups go to the winner of the tournament, the governor's cup, which for five years was considered the trophy of the women's championship of the Western Golf Association, and the Alexander cup, which two years ago was made the particular prize of the association event.

Miss Bessie Anthony of Glenview, the present western champion, is prime favorite today. In the event that she should win the tourney both cups will go to her permanently, inasmuch as she has won the championship two years successively.

The opening round was at 18 holes, medal play—the first 16 players qualifying for the championship and the governor's cup. The next 16 will qualify for the governor's solace cup and the third 16 for the governor's tyro cup. Judging from scores made over the course of yesterday, the low score for the qualifying round will be somewhere between 95 and 100.

TENNIS CHAMPION DETERMINED TODAY

One of the Dohertys Will Meet Malcolm D. Whitman in the Finals.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 26.—It is England against America today on the championship tennis courts here. One of the Dohertys, yet to be determined, will meet Malcolm D. Whitman for three champion of America, in the finals of the tournament. The winner will have the option of meeting William A. Larned, champion of America for last year.

Which of the Doherty brothers will meet Whitman had not been announced at an early hour this morning. It has been the practice of the English brothers never to oppose one another in tournaments abroad. As both have qualified for the finals, one will probably default in favor of the other for the privilege of meeting Whitman today.

Whitman has already defeated R. F. Doherty in singles, during the contest for the Davis trophy. H. L. Doherty won all English championships last year and has shown improved form recently. Yesterday in the match against Lee Ware of Boston, he displayed superb tennis in defeating that crack player.

He will probably represent England in today's match.

Whitman is believed to be the strongest man America has put in the field. He is strong, hardy and a great uphill player, with a reach at the net that makes it almost impossible to pass him.

In case Whitman wins today, it is believed he will withdraw and give the English player the right to meet William A. Larned for the championship. R. F. Doherty beat Larned in the contest for the Davis trophy.

AMATEUR BASEBALL NOTES.

Manager J. Heilgenstein of the Altamont, Ill., Baseball Club would like a game for Aug. 30 with the Pastimes, Visitors or Marines of St. Louis preferred.

Games in the Concordia League Sunday resulted as follows: Grace, 11; Trinity, 2. Batteries—Huetteman and Reuter; Juengel and Scheele. St. Paul, 7-6; Trinity, 6-7. Batteries—Schleuter and Laspe; Berthal and Brunner.

Willow Springs defeated the Frisco Grays Sunday by a score of 4 to 3. The Hunt brothers furnished battery work for the Grays, while Gunn and Stephens served for the winners.

J. P. Renzes defeated the J. M. Lloyd team at South End Park Sunday in a 12-inning game by a score of 5 to 4. The Renzes have an open date for Aug. 31 and for Sept. 14. A. G. Meyer of 4701 Michigan avenue is manager.

KID ABEL LIKE A SELLING PLATER

Never Had a Chance With Attell Who Won All the Way and Easily.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—About the easiest thing in the way of an opponent Abe Attell ever faced, was Kid Abel. Last night, before the American Club, Abel attempted to show in six rounds, what he could do against Jack McKenna's former star. He was smothered with an avalanche of punches, buffeted and made to look like the veriest novice.

From the start of the first round until the gong rang, at the close, Attell hammered his man at will, Abel resorting to futile, bull-like rushes, in which he tangled himself up and made himself a mark for the constant jabbing of his shifty opponent.

Abel's one chance to win seemed to be to break down the California fighter's guard and land a telling blow. He got about as close to this as a kite might to the moon. Attell made a show of him at all stages and cut his face badly in the few rounds the fight lasted.

At the end Abel was still forcing matters, for, though torn outwardly, it was evident his strength was little impaired. The men were supposed to box at 123 pounds, but Abel looked 10 pounds heavier than his opponent.

Once or twice Abell tried to mix it with Attell, and though the latter is supposed to be weak at this end of the game, Abel got the worst of even this side of the contest.

Local followers of the game were much surprised at the cleverness of Attell, as this is the first time he has appeared before a local club. Most critics who witnessed the battle think Attell will prove the cleverest little man who ever stepped into a ring.

FOOTBALL STARS AT A PREMIUM

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—With the waning of summer sports, football is beginning to excite considerable attention. With no politics to concern the collegian the scramble for embryo stars, graduates of the various preparatory schools, is furnishing a bit of merry gossip for the followers of the pigskin. Preparatory schools have always been the feeders of the big colleges and it is to be deplored that the greed to secure star players has compelled the big universities to trespass on the territory of each other.

One example is sufficient to show that sentiment cuts no figure, when a promising player is needed. It has been published that Capt. Gardiner of the University of Pennsylvania football team, is responsible for the statement that young Shevlin, the giant hammer thrower of Hill school, will enter Pennsylvania this fall.

Shevlin holds the world's record for the 12-pound hammer. He is only a boy and will take up the 16-poung hammer this fall and is expected to break all records within a year or two. Besides, he is a sterling football player, weighs 180 pounds and is unusually active on his feet. Yet the writer is in possession of undisputed information from no less a source than Capt. Chadwick of the Yale team, that Shevlin has passed his entrance examination and has been declared eligible by the faculty for the blue football team. Shevlin is regarded as a "great find" at Yale and is expected to make trouble for the veterans from the start to retain the position of tackle.

Morshead Gains First Point.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—In the suit of Walter Morshead against the Central Pacific Co. and others, United States Circuit Judge Morrow has denied the motions of the defendant to dismiss the bill of complaint, and the supplementary bill, but has granted its motions requiring the complainant to furnish securities for costs. The case will now be placed on trial on its merits. Morshead represents the British stockholders in the Central Pacific who contend that their interests have not been properly protected by the management of the company.

"Pete" Husting to Wed.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., Aug. 26.—The marriage of "Pete" Husting, pitcher for the Philadelphia team, and Miss Agnes Sternberger is announced to take place at Mayville on Aug. 28. Husting is expected in this city early this week and after his marriage will return to the Philadelphia team. After the season is over Mr. and Mrs. Husting will return to this city, where Mr. Husting will practice law in partnership with his brother.

MRS. ELLEN ABBOTT VS. MRS. ELLEN ABBOTT

COMPLAINANT AND DEFENDANT OF SAME NAME.

CASE BEFORE JUDGE SIDENER

He Discharged the Defendant, Who Was the Prosecuting Witness, Daughter-in-Law.

Judge Sidener and the other city officials of the City Hall Police Court looked surprised when Deputy Marshal Smith called on Mrs. Ellen Abbott Tuesday morning to prosecute Mrs. Ellen Abbott.

Two women appeared in answer to the names, however, one dropping into the defendant's chair and the other mounting the stand as prosecuting witness.

The latter stated that she resided at 2924 Olive street, and that her namesake was her daughter-in-law, who roomed at 2921 Olive street.

The mother-in-law explained that she and the other Mrs. Abbott are not on good terms; that they had been in litigation over property, and that her son was not living with the defendant.

She declared that after the separation the younger Mrs. Abbott rented a room directly across the street from where she (the mother-in-law) resided and averred that her purpose in so doing was to annoy her.

She cited as a specific instance of this disposition on the part of the younger Mrs. Abbott that she ran across the street after midnight recently and rang her mother-in-law's doorbell.

The younger Mrs. Abbott explained that she had recently secured a judgment in the property controversy against her mother-in-law for $1500, and that the elder Mrs. Abbott was therefore angry at her.

The court discharged the defendant. Both were represented by counsel and had an array of witnesses.

NOODLE MAKER'S HAND HURT.

Macaroni Machine Crushed an Italian's Palm.

A macaroni machine Tuesday morning crushed the right hand of Joseph Ruffino, an Italian, 36 years old, residing at 1017 North Seventh street.

The machine is in the macaroni factory of the Gandolfo-Ghio Co., 104 South Eighth street, where Ruffino is employed as a noodle-maker.

He walked to the City Dispensary after extricating his hand from the machine. Dr. Vogel dressed the injury and sent the Italian to the City Hospital.

Sandbag Blow Was Fatal.

SARATOGA, Aug. 26.—Fred West of Boston is dead here from the effects of being sandbagged. Mr. West had just emerged from a clubhouse near Broadway when he was set upon by two men, who beat him down and emptied his pockets of several thousand dollars.

THE MARKETS

TOO COOL AND TOO WET.

Summary of Crop Conditions From Official Sources.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Following is the agricultural department's weekly summary of crop conditions:

As a whole, the weather conditions east of the Rocky mountains have not been favorable, being too cool in the northern districts eastward of the Missouri Valley, with too much moisture in portions of the central valleys while excessively hot in the southern states with drouth of greater or lesser severity generally throughout the cotton belt. Although cool, the conditions were fairly favorable for maturing crops in the Ohio Valley and over the southern portion of the Middle Atlantic states as well as on the Pacific coast.

Corn is greatly in need of warm, dry weather throughout the northern portion of the corn belt, where the abnormally cool weather of the past two weeks has greatly retarded its maturity. Over the south portion of the corn belt an excellent crop of early corn is now practically assured.

In portions of Iowa and central Illinois corn has badly lodged as a result of local storms.

Spring wheat harvest is unfinished in the northern portion of the Red river valley, where it has been interrupted by frequent showers which have also seriously interfered with stacking and threshing. Sprouting and rotting in stack and shock are reported from Iowa and in southern Minnesota threshed wheat is damp and discolored. Harvest is about three-fourths finished in Oregon and will be completed in Washington during the present week with yields about the average, though less than expected in Washington.

A decided deterioration in the condition of cotton is reported generally throughout the central and western portions of the cotton belt, as well as over a large part of the eastern districts. The most favorable reports are from the Carolinas. In North Carolina the condition of the crop continues very promising, although the prevalence of rust is widespread. On stiff soils in South Carolina new growth is blooming and fruiting, but on sandy soils rust, shedding and premature opening are prevalent. Throughout the central and western districts, with the exception of northern Mississippi and portions of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, where the crop is doing well, the reports indicate a decided decline in its condition, rust, shedding and premature opening being general. On Texas the deterioration has been pronounced and under the most favorable future weather conditions a yield in excess of the average is improbable.

MULES—The fresh arrivals of mules are selling well. Demand is confined mostly to local trade and strong prices prevail. The dealers are showing a disposition to buy all the decent mules that come in. The fat, ready-to-market kinds are meeting with a fine outlet locally, and all sizes of these are selling readily. This is ordinarily the commencement of the feeding season, but the dealers are not as anxious for feeding mules as they are for the good fleshy ones. The market has more general strength at present than it has shown for a couple of months.

HEAVY SELLING IN ATCHISON FOR A CHICAGO HOUSE.

GOULDS ARE STILL BUSY.

Strong Buying Into Texas & Pacific and Missouri Pacific—Pennsylvania Interests After C. & O.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Arbitrage houses have dealt in between 40,000 and 50,000 shares of stocks today, buying a small amount, probably not exceeding 5000 shares, on balance. There appears to have been considerable western realizing on the advance.

There was very heavy selling of Atchison by Wrenn Bros., thought to be for a Chicago account.

During the first hour the market was very active and strong and almost all stocks advanced above last night's close. Union Pacific and Atchison were the leaders. Southern Pacific was rather quiet and it was thought that some of the buyers of last week were taking advantage of the strength of the general market to liquidate in Southern Pacific. Pennsylvania houses were large buyers of C. & O., but the volume of stocks for sale above 56½ was greater than the powers of absorption.

The Gould brokers were large buyers of their specialties, more especially of Texas & Pacific and Missouri Pacific. The market became dull after the first hour, but prices were well maintained.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—There were large opening transactions in the speculative favorites in which the quotations for several were wide. Eight thousand shares of Chesapeake & Ohio sold at 56⅛ to 56⅞, compared with 56⅛ last night, and 4000 shares of Union Pacific sold at 112¼ and 112¾, compared with 112 last night. Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, Erie first preferred, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie and Tennessee Coal rose a point or more and Colorado Fuel made a violent advance of 2½. Southern Pacific reflected realizing with a fractional decline, and a few other stocks sagged slightly.

Profits were sought quickly in Baltimore & Ohio and Colorado Fuel, and they relapsed about a point each. Heavy buying was going on meanwhile in Atchison, Texas & Pacific and Union Pacific the first named rising nearly 2, and the others over a point. At other points the movement was unimportant and irregular. Southern Pacific, after a rally, sold to ½ under last night with continued realizing. Lackawanna advanced 4 points. Active stocks were very irregular. Illinois Central fell off about a point, while Baltimore & Ohio rallied and St. Paul and Reading rose a point.

Prices continued to move very unevenly. Speculative interest shifted rapidly here and there. Erie, Reading second preferred, Illinois Central and Kansas & Texas preferred were bid up a point, General Electric 5, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg 3, Pacific Coast 2, and Anaconda 2. Considerable of the rise in early strong features was wiped out, notably in Union Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio, the latter falling ¼ under yesterday's closing. St. Louis Southwestern, Canada Southern, Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred, North American and Bicycle preferred declined between 1 and 2 points.

Bonds were steady at noon.

Renewed buying of Atchison carried it to 96¼. Missouri Pacific led a movement in the Southwesterns with a rise of 1¼. Kansas & Texas preferred jumped 3. The upward movement was still without consistency, earlier, strong stocks dropping back, while these new advances were made. Amongst less active stocks American Express and United States Express rose 2@2½. New Jersey Central 2⅞ and Pullman a point. General Electric reacted 1⅛ and Pacific Coast second preferred, International Silver preferred and New York Air Brake lost 1@1½.

A drop in Western Union to a figure a point below yesterday's close influenced scattered selling of other active stocks. Baltimore & Ohio, however, resisted the drift successfully and on purchase of large blocks, and running up to 6000 shares, touched 115¼ again—the opening price. Rock Island declined a point and some obscure stocks were heavy. United States Express extended its rise to 5 points and the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic and Rubber Goods stocks improved 1 to 2¾.

WIFE NO. 1 ON THE SCENE.

Became Servant for Wife No. 2 to Expose Alleged Wrongs.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHARLESTON, Ill., Aug. 26.—Jacob Davis, a prosperous farmer, has filed a suit for divorce from a wife his neighbors did not know he had.

Six years ago he married a young woman who lived in this community and they lived happily until a strange woman was engaged by them, upon application, as servant. The strange woman soon convinced Mrs. Davis that she was Davis' real wife as she could claim priority in that position, having married him many years ago.

Mrs. Davis No. 2 promptly drove him from his home.

He came to this city where he filed his divorce suit against wife No. 1, the petition charging desertion.

LIMITATION STATUTE VOID.

Federal Court Decision on Case Brought From Colorado.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 26.—Judge Sanborn of the United States court of appeals, in deciding the case of Aaron Keyser, brought here on an appeal from the circuit court of the United States for the District of Colorado, held that the Colorado statute of limitation is void and in violation of the constitution of the United States. The case dates back to 1885, when the plaintiff secured judgment against the defendant in the Utah courts. In 1901 action upon the judgment given in 1885 was begun and judgment rendered in favor of the plaintiff for $9,052.61. When the judgment was obtained the cause of action was barred by the Colorado statute of limitation. Judge Sanborn's decision was very lengthy, and reverses the decision of the lower court.

SEVEN ROBBERS STOP TRAIN.

But Explosives Fail to Work and They Secure Nothing.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 26.—The west-bound Northern Pacific train was robbed at Sand Point, Idaho, 65 miles east of here, last night.

The robbers, of whom there were seven, forced the engineer to stop the train, after which they uncoupled the baggage car. Then they compelled the engineer to pull up the track about three miles, where they tried to wreck the baggage car with dynamite.

The explosives failed to work, and after spending 15 minutes with the car, the robbers ran away, allowing the engineer to go back to the train with his engine.

Two other thugs had guarded the train, keeping the passengers inside by firing revolvers along the sides. No attempt was made to molest the passengers, and after the engine returned the other robbers fled and the train came on to Spokane. The train was in charge of Conductor William Gilbert of Helena. It was heavily loaded.

MINERS WERE SUFFOCATED.

Explosion of a Compressor Was Fatal to Two.

BUTTE, Mont., Aug. 26.—Word has been received in this city of the death of Kreg Sample and Thomas Whitcomb, two miners in the properties of the Great Northern Mining Co. at Gilt Edge, Mont. The mine compressor exploded and the two men were suffocated. The others had narrow escapes and were rescued in an unconscious condition.

MARKET INCLINED TO LOWER PRICES

MISSOURI STILL WANTED

Rumors of a Dividend in January of Next Year Accepted on the Street —Edisons Were Again Weak.

The general list with the exception of Missouri Trust was inclined to sell off today and there was quite an amount of profit taking. The tractions and Missouri Trust were almost the sole points of interest in the market. Missouri-Edison securities again ruled weak.

On the opening Transit was off ¼ at 32 asked, at which figure 50 shares changed hands. Later it lost an eighth, selling 300 shares at 31⅞. The preferred again was the stronger, holding firm and selling at 84⅝ and 84¾. Two thousand United Railway 4s went at 87⅜, closing firm at that figure. Suburban securities and St. Louis and Meramec were again wanted at yesterday's figures, but none were offered. One thousand St. Louis Cable & Western sold at 116, a loss of two points from the last sale.

Mechanics' sold at 300, the high mark being due to the excellent showing of the institution and renewed rumors of a further increase in the capital stock. Third National was again forgotten, notwithstanding the recent return of its president which was popularly supposed to presage important developments.

The continued strength in Missouri Trust is credited to the report that its first dividend has been earned and will be paid in January. The president stated this morning that no dividend would be paid this year, but was silent on a January of next year payment. The stock today sold liberally from 128¼ to 129, a slight shade of yesterday's prices.

The miscellaneous list was neglected and ruled steady, with the exception of Central Coal & Coke, which on the strength of reports of a pool being formed, advanced to 67¾ bid and 68¼ asked.

BUYING BY SHORTS APPEARS TO BE OVER

THE GRAIN MARKETS WEAKEN AND DECLINE IN PRICE.

SELLING WAS HEAVIER

Grain.

The large reduction that was made Monday in the visible supply of shorts had a demoralizing effect Tuesday, when the bulls, who had gone long on the advance, tried to sell out. Particularly did the September deal suffer, the deal that the day before threw bears into nervous fits and out of the market through fear of being "cornered." That option broke down 2c for wheat and 2⅛c for corn and wound up very shaky at the bottom. Bullish conditions were not near so much in evidence and bearish conditions were, wheat making a lightning change in this respect. Continued unsettled weather should prevent much further decline in coarse grains if it continues, and wheat will be a purchase when the market becomes too badly oversold again. It looks very heavy right now, though, as spring wheat and foreign conditions are distinctly bearish.

WHEAT—The yearning for speculative wheat, especially that called September, which so strongly expressed at Monday's opening and close, was strikingly lacking Tuesday morning. There was really more disposition to sell than buy in the St. Louis market, though no great pressure on that side, as speculation apparently not decided just which side to play the strongest. That craving demand from shorts that had been such a conspicuous feature for several days past, was conspicuous by its absence and considerable bull talk heard, indicating a long interest had been formed.

Disappointing cables, Liverpool having only advanced ⅛d and then eased back ⅛d, and Paris ¼c lower, little rain in the Northwest, and weaker domestic markets acted as a check upon buyers and led to considerable selling. Receipts locally of 220,600 bushels, against 186,800 bu last Tuesday and 166,600 bu a year ago proved a bearish influence also. It was notable that Minneapolis and Duluth has 282 cars, which 180 in excess of a week ago, though 532 cars below a year ago.

September opened ⅛c lower at 67¼c, declined to 66¾c and rallied to 67⅛c and fell back to 66⅞c sellers. December opened at 66¼c, where it closed Monday, and sold off to 66c. May opened at 68½c and later offered at 68¼@68⅜c.

After looking around 67c for September and 66c for December for some time, as though undecided just what to do, the market started to declining again. Threshing returns from the Northwest showing yields per acre of 20 to 35 bushels and good grading of the new spring wheat crop in Minneapolis created bearish sentiment and speculation and caused some of the people who bought on late advances to sell out. So did cables that reported Liverpool closing unchanged and Paris ½c to 2¼c lower for the day, further declines from the opening. Clearances were smaller—355,000 bu in flour and wheat—and Bradstreet's showed a large increase.

September displayed most weakness owing to the absence of good buying, and before 12 o'clock had sold at 66¼@66⅜c, December selling at 65⅞c and May at 68⅛c.

Bradstreet's world's visible increased 1,906,000 bu, though at points outside the American visible there was 219,000 bu decrease last week. The primary receipts were 1,185,000 bu, against 1,204,000 bu one year ago and shipments 617,000 bu, against 558,000 bu last year.

Exporters said they were unable to work a bushel, and their cables were very bearish, harping on fine weather abroad and making bids that were entirely too low for acceptance. The local cash market was 1@1½c lower and lacking the excellent shipping demand that has prevailed. These unfavorable conditions, directly affecting the cash situation, increased the desire to sell and so much greater was it than the buying that an almost steady decline took place, the market closing at the bottom and at declines for the day of 2c for September and ⅝@¾c for December, latter again going to a premium.

September declined to 65⅝c, closing with sellers at that, the latest trading in December at 65½@65⅝c and May offered at 68¼c.

Cash market—Received 13,227 sacks and 205 cars local and 7 cars through. Lower and slower sale. Shipping demands very much smaller and local milling demands light, the weakening in futures restricting purchases materially, so that elevator buyers had the market more to themselves than in some time past. From store 25,000 bu No. 2 red sold f. o. b. east side at 2c over September to go east. By sample delivered: No. 2 red sold at 67½c to 67c west side; No. 3 red at 66c to 65½c west side and 66½c to 65¾c east side; No. 4 at 63½c to 62½c west and 64¼c to 62c east side; rejected at 53c to 62c, according to quality. Sacked in elevator: No. 2 red at 66⅜c; No. 3 red at 63⅜c; No. 4 at 60⅜c. Hard winter dull and lower. No. 2 not quotable above 66c for Nebraska and 68c for Turkey and No. 3 at 63c to 66½c.

CORN—Another rainy weather map for the corn belt, Iowa being again particularly afflicted by too much wet weather, gave an upward impetus to prices at the opening, though the demand not near so active and searching as the day before and confined chiefly to December. In fact, September was almost neglected, the pressing demand from shorts of Monday apparently supplied and no one else seeming to want any of it. Receipts were still small—20,700 bu, against 62,400 bu a year ago—and Liverpool ⅛d higher.

September did not open until offered at 57½c, this 1½c decline, but then reacted to 58c. December opened at ¼c higher at 37¾c and sold at 38c, then declining to 37⅝c.

Bradstreet's available indicated only 93,000 bu decrease last week, outside the regular visible. Primary receipts were 194,000 bu, against 508,000 bu one year ago, and shipments 687,000 bu, against 542,000 bu last year. Clearances were 15,700 bu.

The volume of trading continued small and prices showed little change during balance of the forenoon. Speculative operators were afraid to sell much on account of the rain and the unsettled conditions prevailing and the small receipts everywhere.

September sold at 58¼c, December at 37¾@37⅞c to 37⅝c, and May at 37¼c. The first trading in September was at 58½c, but not reported until late.

The depression and decline in wheat proved too much for corn and it weakened late in the day. Buyers were so scarce of September that it was finally offered at 56⅞c, which is a 2⅛c decline for the day. December at close had sellers at 37⅛c, or ⅜c decline, and May at 37c.

Cash market—Received 21 cars wheat and 2 cars through. Lower and dull. The demand very light from all sources, only a few cars being taken to fill orders. Some of the No. 2 in store sold for shipment has been conceded and is once more for sale. By sample delivery—No. 2 sold at 58c to 57½c, west side; No. 3 at 56½c to 56c east side; No. 2 yellow at 58c and No. 3 yellow at 56½c, east side; No. 3 white at 61c, west side. No. 2 white nominally 61½@62c.

OATS—The effect of further rains in the large oat states was to bring out some buying that advanced September ⅛c, it opening at 26¾c and 26⅞c then bid. There were also bids of 29c for August and 26⅞c for December. Receipts were 69,000 bu, against 49,200 bu one year ago.

A decline in September to 26½c followed as a result of weakness in other markets and poor speculative support locally.

Bradstreet's reported an increase last week of 677,000 bu outside the regular visible. Primary receipts 997,000 bu, against 705,000 bu one year ago, and shipments 385,000 bu, against 336,000 bu last year. Clearances 9200 bu.

September sold later at 26⅝c, but that asked at close, as it was also for December. The cash market was lower and slow.

Cash market—Received 41 cars local and 10 cars through. Lower. Moderate buying by shippers and local dealers and to go to elevator, but not enough to clean up the offerings closely. By sample delivered—New No. 2 sold at 29c East Side, No. 3 at 27@27½c East and 27¼@27¾c West Side; No. 4 at 24½c to 26¾c for low to choice; No. 2 white at 42c for old; No. 3 white at 35½c for new and 38@39c for old; No. 4 white at 30c to 34c for poor to choice new.

RYE—Very scanty offerings, but market lower to sell at 49½c for No. 2 and 45c to 47c for No. 3.

Trade Topics.

Writing under date of Aug. 14, Griffith, Williams & Co. of Liverpool report to Dickson Cunningham a steadier market for wheat, with a good, healthy spot demand. Arrivals go quickly into consumption, so that stocks not increasing and quantity afloat decreasing. Old wheats eagerly sought after and good premiums paid for spot over that to arrive. Spring wheat firm and unusually scarce. The British and German crops in bad shape, as many fields laid flat, which prevents harvesting machines being used and harvest probably delayed until end of September or well into October. Should weather continue unfavorable the result would be disastrous. Maize very steady, as a great number of cargoes sold for Danubian account being canceled and 18d to 2s a quarter penalty paid owing to severe damage by drouth. River Plate cargoes also arriving very bad, causing prime stuff to be very scarce and eagerly sought after. Of the crop conditions they say Russia reports good harvest results, except about Odessa and Nicolaieff, where crops are a failure. In some spring wheat districts drouth and fogs did damage. Roumania reports excellent wheat harvests in quantity and quality, but maize damaged by drouth, with over 30 per cent said to be destroyed. Austria-Hungary reports good threshing results in yield, but quality disappointing. In Germany great damage to rye by bad weather and prices advancing; considerable damage to wheat expected. In France harvest proceeds very slowly on account of the number of laid fields. In the north yields disappointing, but very good in the south. An uneven and unsatisfactory rainfall reported in India. Argentine wheat promise excellently, but very extensive damage to linseed in Santa Fe.

Although receipts of winter wheat continue large, this appears to be the final cleaning up of the late heavy movement from the warms and not the result of farmers' deliveries. Farmers are busy now with their fall plowing and seeding and the country movement of grain is light. As soon as they are through with this work they will begin threshing from the stack and another large amount should be seen, though not likely to equal the first run of wheat to the markets. Samples received here from stack wheat shows fine condition and quality, so that the next run of winter wheat will show a much larger percentage of No. 2 wheat.

Des Moines, Io., wires: "Made trip 15 miles yesterday and rained all day. Small grain in deplorable condition, large per cent worthless and abandoned. Corn very green and will need all September to mature."

Telegraphic advices from Fargo are that weather fine and threshing returns from Comstock give a yield of 30 bushels to the acre.

Gov. E. O. Stanard is back from a visit and rest in the North.

A strong tip comes from a reliable source that Atchison is going much higher. Monday it closed at 93⅛ and Tuesday morning was up to 95.

Telegrams from Fargo report a yield of spring wheat in that section of 25 to 35 bu per acre, and in other parts of North Dakota of 20 to 28 bu.

Amedee B. Cole, who has been away for a couple of weeks enjoying the salt air and fighting mosquitoes at Atlantic City, has returned.

The New York Produce Exchange will adjourn on Friday's close until the following Tuesday's opening and the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange and Chicago Board of Trade may take the same action.

Considering the rains of last week in the northwest the grading of new spring wheat at Minneapolis is excellent. Out of 220 cars today, 5 cars inspected No. 1 hard, 70 No. 1 northern, 63 No. 3 northern, 15 No. 3, 22 rejected and 45 no grade.

Bradstreet's reported 206,000 bu increase last week in available stocks of wheat east of the Rockies, against 774,000 bu decrease and indicating 219,000 bu decrease at points outside the regular visible last week. European supplies afloat and ashore increased 1,700,000 bu, so that the world's visible increased 1,906,000 bu, where a year ago it decreased 489,000 bu. The corn available decreased 2,108,000 bu last week, against 774,000 bu decrease a year ago, and 774,000 bu decrease last week in the regular visible. Oats available increased 1,317,000 bu, against 527,000 bu increase a year ago and 527,000 bu increase last week in the visible.

The president of one of the largest elevators here said that he offered 500,000 bu No. 2 red, delivery until Sept. 1, at September price in the house, but he could not find a buyer for it.

FLOUR AND FEED.

FLOUR—Domestic buyers appear to have made their minds up that the low price has been seen and they are buying much more freely and steadily. The foreigners, however, are holding off and will not pay the rates demanded.

Quotations are as follows: New soft wheat flour in wood—Patents, $3.20@3.30; straights, $3.05@3.15; extra fancy, $2.90@3; clear, $2.75@2.85; low grades, $2.40@2.60. ## GRAIN MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Grains opened easy today on fair weather. In the Northwest, where the spring harvest is the principal factor in the wheat situation, there has been fair weather for 24 hours and clear skies are still predicted. This caused small dips in the northwestern markets and together with indifferent cables and a light trade, brought an easier tone to the local market. September wheat started a shade to ⅛@¼c down, at 72⅜c to 72¼c, and fell off to 71⅞@72c. Receipts were fairly liberal, but grading continued poor. Local receipts were 477 cars, one of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 282 cars, making a total for the three points of 759 cars, against 572 last week and 1039 a year ago. There was some fear that the forthcoming increase of 5c a hundred in grain rates from the Missouri river would curtail shipments.

Corn was fairly active and very erratic again today. Any bid or offering caused wide fluctuations. Stocks here fell off again, receipts were poor and grading poorer. September started unchanged to ¼c up, at 59½c to 60c, broke to 58⅝c and rallied to 59¼c. Receipts were 80 cars, six of contract grade.

Receipts of oats were heavy at 533 cars, but there were only 18 cars of standard grade. Shorts still felt nervous over the congestion in September options, but prices slipped off in sympathy with other grains. September started ⅛c up to ⅛c down, at 33⅜c to 33⅛c, and dipped to 33⅜c. Trade was quiet early.

Provisions had a good spurt early on higher prices in the hog market and on fair support. All the early gain, however, did not hold. Trade was not active. September pork opened 17½c up, at $17.10, and reacted to $16.97½. September lard started 7½c to 10c up, at $10.95 to $10.97½, and September lard 5c up, at $10.25, and eased off 2½c.

General Counsel:
JOHN G. CARLISLE, 30 Broad Street, New York City.

The attention of holders of trust company shares and shares of national banks is specially invited to the securities of the newly organized United States Bankers' Corporation.

This Corporation begins business officered by men of national reputation, and in a field broader and more fruitful than that of any banking corporation in this country. It possesses the rights to a system which, it is believed by its officers and directors, will render trust company banking even more profitable than at present. In view of this it is confidently expected that the earnings of the shares of this Corporation will show a heavier percentage than the earnings of any trust company in America.

Information regarding the number of shares of the capital stock of the Corporation open for subscription, together with details concerning its working plans, will be given on inquiry. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are at present owners of, or wish to become interested in, trust company securities, to call at the offices of Bankers' Finance Co., 507 Union Trust Building, St. Louis. Those who would like to be more fully informed regarding this Corporation's plan of work, but who cannot call in person, are requested to send their names and addresses by early post.

The popularity of trust company shares and their rapid rise in value are shown conclusively by recent over-subscriptions in several large cities. It is reasonable that the pronounced advantages possessed by this Corporation over all existing trust companies will stimulate active competition for its shares.

The lowest limit of investment is $100.
Par value of shares Ten Dollars.
There is no extra liability of shareholders.

Leo Hagnauer Tried to Kill Wife and Self.

ATTACK WAS NEAR POSTOFFICE

BOTH ARE EXPECTED TO DIE FROM WOUNDS.

Separation Two Weeks Ago Followed by Threats of Murder, Which Husband Attempted to Carry Out With Razor.

Following a threat which he had openly made for two days, Leo Hagnauer slashed his wife's neck five times with a razor near the postoffice in Venice Monday night.

He followed up the assault by making four gashes in his own throat, one of which came within a hair's breadth of the jugular vein.

Hagnauer and his wife are both in a dangerous condition from their wounds. She is at Liefferig's boarding house on Main street, in Venice, and he is at the office of Dr. Scott, on the Edwardsville road.

The refusal of Mrs. Theresa Hagnauer, the wife, to live with her husband caused his attempt to kill her and himself.

Two weeks ago the couple, who have been married five years and have two children, separated because of quarrels occasioned by the husband's jealousy.

The two children were sent to the home of their grandfather, Robert Hagnauer, former clerk of Madison County.

Mrs. Hagnauer went to Liefferig's boarding house in Venice to work. She told her friends that she would perform any drudgery rather than return to her husband.

Last week the husband worked at the ice plant in Madison. Sunday afternoon he attended a picnic and met his wife there.

He entreated her to return to him, but she replied that she was better off where she was, and that she had no intention of repeating her attempt to get along with him.

"If you don't come back to me I'll kill you and myself," the man declared. His wife laughed at him and repeated the jest, as she considered it, to her friends.

Sunday he visited his home and asked for a razor with which to shave. His mother gave him a razor, and after using it he remarked: "I'll use this to cut my wife's throat and my own if she doesn't come back to me."

"Don't talk that way, Leo," said the mother, and thought no more of his words.

Monday night Hagnauer waited near the Venice postoffice for his wife to come for the mail. Shortly before 8 o'clock she appeared.

Calling her to one side, he threw his arm around her neck, and, as she struggled in his grasp, he drew the blade five times across the fleshy part of her neck.

Withdrawing the blade after his last stroke, which had cut to the bone, the husband let his wife fall on the ground and commenced slashing his own throat. When he had made four deep cuts, and the blood was spurting over his hands, he lay down beside her, expecting death in a few minutes.

A crowd had been attracted by the woman's cries and she was carried to the boarding house, while the husband was taken to Dr. Scott's office.

Tuesday morning both were living, but were very low.

Hagnauer comes of a well-known family and has borne a good reputation. His home life until lately was considered happy.

CHILD WAS CUPID'S AGENT

C. A. Lewis of Honolulu Weds Miss Lillian Gore, Who Had Cared for His Boy.

C. A. Lewis of Honolulu, Hawaii Islands, and Miss Lillian Belle Gore of Kansas City were married Monday morning in East St. Louis.

Mr. Lewis told Deputy County Clerk Caughlan that he was a traveling salesman for a Honolulu mercantile house, with American territory. He said he was a widower, with one child, a boy, his wife having died when the boy was an infant.

The child had been raised by Miss Gore at her home in Kansas City, she having been a friend of his first wife.

The child was the means of drawing them together and causing them to fall in love with one another. Mr. Gore was on the road most of the time and saw his child very little. Letters passed between himself and Miss Gore frequently concerning the child.

When the boy was old enough to write letters to his papa, these were filled with references to Miss Gore, who he had learned to call mamma.

Loving the child, it was not difficult for her to learn to love the father. Mr. Lewis was to be in Chicago and he wrote to Miss Gore to meet him in St. Louis. They met here Monday morning and went to East St. Louis and, after they had obtained a license, were married by Rev. J. J. Reader.

FEET BURNED, HOME SAVED

C. McKinley Put Out Early Morning Blaze Which Lightning May Have Caused.

Mr. C. McKinley of 3817 Washington avenue was burned on the feet and ankles while extinguishing a blaze which originated in his home early Tuesday morning.

The fire started during the height of the storm, in a corner of the library, where some waste rags and linseed oil, used in cleaning the room, were stored. A broken window glass in the same part of the room might indicate that lightning was responsible for the fire.

Mr. McKinley, who was sleeping on the second floor, was alarmed by a servant girl and ran downstairs. He carried several buckets of water into the blazing room and put out the fire before the firemen arrived. Afterward he discovered that he had suffered blistered feet.

WORTH A THOUGHT.

This Statement Will Interest Scores of St. Louis Readers.

The facts given below are worth a perusal by all who are anxious about their physical condition or are similarly situated to this resident of St. Louis. It is a local occurrence and can be thoroughly investigated:

William Tracy, teamster, 5741 Cote Brilliante av., says: "As a rule for two years I had pain in the back, but if I performed an extra hard day's work or was engaged in my calling during wet and stormy weather the aching was greatly aggravated. On such occasions trouble with the kidney secretions was sure to ensue. Looking over my paper one night I noticed Doan's Kidney Pills recommended by several prominent people in St. Louis. Some of the cases were similar to mine and they had been cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. This induced me to go to the Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. for a box. A dose helped, a continuation of the treatment brought greater results, and when I had finished it not only had the pain disappeared, but the too frequent action of the kidney secretions ceased."

For sale by all dealers for 50c per box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name — Doan's — and take no substitute.

Watch and Money Taken From Edward Gilmore, Who Had Miss Rose Blethroade With Him.

"Won't you give us car fare?" said a pretty girl at Creve Coeur Lake, after her escort had been relieved of his money and watch by a robber.

"Certainly, miss," was the man's answer, and he handed her a dollar from the pocketbook which he had just filched from its owner.

Miss Rose Blethroade of 1410 Prairie avenue was the young woman who succeeded in getting the rebate from the courteous highwayman, who, however, assured her and her companion that if they moved for 10 minutes after he left them they would be shot.

With Edward Gilmore of 2829 Madison street Miss Blethroade had been on the lake from 3 o'clock until dusk. At 7 o'clock they started to take the street car.

When they were near the street railway platform a man stepped out from the shadow of a large tree and pointed a revolver, making at the same time a request for money.

"You have the advantage of me," said Gilmore, and he stood very still while the man extracted money and gold watch and chain from his pockets.

Then came the request for car fare, the robber's gracious assent, and his hasty departure.

A party of men stayed with Gilmore until the last car left, hoping that the man would board the car, but no more was seen of him. The man had a black goatee and wore a slouch hat and dark clothing.

MUST REMAIN ALL BRITISH.

Condition Upon Which Cunard Line Gets Larger Subsidy.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 26.—It is now understood at Liverpool that the arrangement by which the Cunard line is to receive a handsome augmentation of the government subsidy hitherto paid for carrying the mails, is practically complete and that it is a condition that the line shall remain all British.
